Dear Friends of the MRC,

In 1987, I founded the Media Research Center in Alexandria, Virginia, in a rickety antebellum townhouse. We started with seven phones, two desks, a rented computer, a black and white television, and a few conservatives sick of the liberal bias in the media. The smart money said we didn't stand a chance. A handful of donors thought otherwise.

Thirty years later, the MRC is the world's premier media watchdog. We are the frontline defense against the leftist ideology permeating the media. Our staff takes on the multi-billion dollar liberal media every day and regularly neutralizes their efforts.

We began with the News Analysis Division to provide research to offer irrefutable evidence of a biased news media. In 1998, we launched the first conservative online news service, CNSNews. We added the MRC Business and MRC Culture divisions. We launched MRCTV in 2011 and MRC Latino in 2014.

We have grown from a handful of young conservatives to an army of hundreds of thousands of grassroots members and over 11 million Facebook fans dedicated to combating the toxic influence of liberal bias in the media.

Because of the MRC, Americans can now understand the media's leftist agenda. Consider: In 1987, 75% of the public considered the media objective. Today, because of our efforts, eight out of ten Americans believe that the media are biased.

But our work is not finished. Not by a long shot.

Years ago, my friend Rush Limbaugh asked me what was my ultimate goal at the Media Research Center. “To succeed,” I said, “shut it down and get a real job.” Rush laughed. “Well, you’ll never get a real job, because the liberal media will never give up. The MRC will always be needed.”

As usual, Rush was right. While we’ve succeeded in exposing their liberal agenda time and again, it hasn’t cooled their political zeal. Like so many liberals, the media have become radicalized. They are the microphones of the far left. If they can't win by distorting the truth, they invent the story. President Trump was correct to label this “fake news.” It is everywhere, documented by us.

The struggle is now existential. The radicalized left is committed not just to the socialist transformation of the United States, but to the deconstruction of the West. They need the “news” media to enable their efforts. That's where the MRC comes in. We will not allow it.

The stakes are great, but the equation has changed. Now, with your support, the smart money is on us.

Sincerely,

L. Brent Bozell III
Founder and President
By The Numbers 2017

In 2017, the MRC’s findings reached tens of millions of Americans each week, educating them about liberal media bias and mobilizing them to take action to fight it. The MRC continued to expand its reach, and its content not only permeated conservative media, but also reached millions of Americans outside the conservative base every week.

HISTORY OF THE NEWS ANALYSIS DIVISION

The News Analysis Division (NAD) is the cornerstone of the MRC. In 1987, widely-available VCR technology made it feasible to track and accurately analyze news footage. This technology enabled the MRC to document liberal media bias as never before and, through monthly newsletters, educate the public on this underreported issue.

As technology advanced, NAD progressed from shelves of VHS tapes, to binders full of DVDs, to today’s HD-quality MP4 computer files. Over the years, the MRC amassed one of the largest news video archives in the world. As of 2017, the MRC annually records approximately 37,000 hours of news footage, and has saved more than 640,000 hours of footage since 1987.

Initially, MRC’s monthly newsletter, MediaWatch, was distributed by mail. In 1996, the MRC created the daily CyberAlert email, putting proof of media bias into the daily conversation. In 2005, the MRC launched the NewsBusters blog, which allows for real-time updates, including embedded video proof of the media’s bias. NewsBusters is now an indispensable news source for hundreds of thousands of Americans.

In 2015, the MRC launched “Bias by the Minute,” a project which produces quantitative data on liberal media bias. The detailed database of tens of thousands of news stories makes possible fast and comprehensive studies. This project generates key statistics about media bias that are routinely cited by Fox News, conservative talk radio, and across social media. This has proven very effective at holding the liberal media accountable and providing irrefutable documentation of their bias.

The News Analysis Division (NAD) has been monitoring and exposing liberal media bias for 30 years and in 2017 used their well-honed skills, research capabilities and institutional knowledge of the media industry to combat a radicalized media intent on sabotaging the conservative movement and the Trump administration for espousing those principles.

NAD utilized three effective tools: the video and research archive, the widely-read NewsBusters blog, and persuasive content analysis studies proving liberal bias.

The MRC Archives: An Invaluable Resource

NAD continued to build up its extensive video archive which now has approximately 640,000 hours of news footage dating back to 1987. Using a high-tech digital video recording system, NAD serves all MRC divisions by recording roughly 725 hours a week of news and entertainment programs for analysts to utilize. Outside the Library of Congress, no one has as extensive a video library.

The archive is a valuable resource, providing blog writers and study authors with unique and immediate research opportunities to illustrate their posts and demonstrate historic coverage contrasts as no other group can. This research and analysis methodology has made it possible for the MRC to demonstrate the hypocrisy of liberal news outlets and journalists based on old footage documenting opinions, outtakes, news segments, and interviews. On Mediaite, Larry O’Connor championed “the Media Research Center’s fantastic archives and research techniques.”

For example, the video archive sparked MRC to produce three video compilations in January, all highlighted by the Drudge Report and garnering hundreds of thousands of views, demonstrating the media’s agenda: “Farewell to a Decade of Media Drooling Over Barack Obama,” “Flashback: Journalists Mocked Trump’s Announcement as a Joke” and “Flashback: In 2009, Networks Slobbered Over Obama’s ‘Sacred Event.’”

Exposing Liberal Media Bias 24/7

In 2017, the NewsBusters blog, both directly to readers and as a resource tapped by influential conservative opinion leaders, remained the leading vehicle exposing and combating liberal media bias.

NewsBusters posts roughly 20 times per day, seven days per week, fueled by expert MRC staff news analysts and experienced freelance bloggers nationwide. This enables rapid-response posts on a wide range of content which has made NewsBusters the tip of the spear taking on the leftist media. More than half the posts were enhanced by current or archived video. This type of mixed-media production helped NewsBusters attract nearly 19 million users and more than 77 million page views in 2017.

NAD staff also employed social media to maximize the impact of posts which were cited regularly by major media outlets (including the Washington Examiner, Daily Caller, Breitbart, Fox Nation, The Blaze, Newsmax, Washington Free Beacon and The Federalist) and radio talk show hosts, such as Rush Limbaugh and Mark Levin, who frequently used NewsBusters as a resource for their shows.

To spread proof of the media’s outrages to an even wider online audience, once a week the Washington Examiner featured a “Mainstream Media Scream,” a repugnant video clip from the news selected by NAD.

Additionally, often prompted by a report or post on NewsBusters, MRC President Brent Bozell and NAD staffers appeared 105 times on national television programs and 580 times on radio programs throughout the year.

Irrefutable Studies, Indisputable Analysis

NAD’s irrefutable studies served as an effective tool in the fight against media bias. The MRC earned significant coverage for nearly 50 studies, most featuring number counts analyses as part of NAD’s “Bias by the Minute” project.

For example, in January 2017, NAD found that the networks paid 57 times more attention to President Trump’s temporary travel ban from seven terrorist-compromised nations, compared to Obama’s permanent end to the “wet foot, dry foot” policy that helped Cubans flee the island’s communist tyranny.

Marking one hundred days for the Trump administration, a study released in April, “Honeymoon from Hell: The Liberal Media vs. President Trump,” was highlighted by the Drudge Report which headlined the key finding: “STUDY: 89% of Media Negative Towards Trump...” Eight Fox News shows, as well as CNN, Newsmax and C-SPAN all showcased the damning study.

President Trump, giving credit to the MRC, cited the finding during a speech in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

In late June, Fox & Friends showcased NAD’s documentation of the media’s Russia obsession and NAD data was cited by White House press secretary Sarah Sanders during a briefing and by presidential counselor Kellyanne Conway on ABC’s Good Morning America.

NAD’s Trump statistics in September showed negative coverage of the president had bounced back to 91 percent. Fox News jumped on the numbers, starting with Lou Dobbs Tonight and then The Five led with them, followed by segments on Hannity and Fox & Friends. Additionally, Drudge Report, Daily Caller, the Washington Post and many others highlighted these statistics.

Another update in December, “Even As Media Whine About Trump, Their Hostile Coverage Shows No Let Up,” was picked up by the Drudge Report, again cited by Sarah Sanders at a White House briefing and showcased on eight Fox News or Fox Business shows. On The Five, Kimberly Guilfoyle applauded the “eye-opening statistics.”

Though 2017 presented a media intent on pushing a radical leftist agenda, NAD proved itself more than capable of taking them to task.

NAD’s strength remains in its solid studies, its unparalleled research capabilities, and its commitment to demanding accuracy in the media. This strength was probably best expressed by The Hill’s Joe Concha who, when appearing on Tucker Carlson Tonight, raved: “Nobody ever refutes their analysis, their studies.”

President Trump tweeted a critique of the liberal media based on MRC analysis in November.

President Trump Excoriates Media, Cites MRC Study at Rally Marking His First 100 Days

At an April 29, 2017 rally in Harrisburg, PA, President Donald Trump spent extensive portions of his first 100 days speech torching the news media for their liberal tilt, using facts from the MRC’s April 19 blockbuster study.

“... before we talk about my first 100 days which has been very exciting, let’s rate the media’s 100 days. According to the Media Research Center, 89 percent of the media’s coverage of our administration has been negative and purposely negative and perhaps that’s because according to the Center for Public Integrity, 96 percent of journalists who made donations in the last election gave them to our opponent. Does anyone remember who our opponent was ... ?”
Since its launch in 2014, MRC Latino has earned a reputation for “punching above its weight” and 2017 was no exception. Among the highlights, the year saw the Hispanic media arm of the Media Research Center successfully take on the National Puerto Rican Day Parade in New York, after that organization decided to honor convicted terrorist Oscar López Rivera as the parade’s “National Freedom Hero.”

Working in tandem with the MRC’s grassroots arm, MRC Action, MRC Latino exposed the scandal and put sustained pressure on the parade’s sponsors to drop their participation in the event. Within hours, Univision’s corporate offices in New York and Miami were flooded with more than 600 calls, forcing them to pull out of the event.

The year also saw MRC Latino undertake new initiatives in order to reach a larger audience and foster additional engagement, such as Facebook Live and weekly videos on MRC Latino’s Facebook page, as well as a monthly email newsletter highlighting top content. By the end of the year, the program had reached and surpassed all its annual social media goals.

The monitoring capacities of MRC Latino were also expanded in 2017, and the program now analyzes the news programming of six national Spanish-language television networks. Unlike in English-language media, in U.S. Spanish-language media there are no conservative news alternatives at the national level, which has made MRC Latino’s role of conservative countering and “filling in the gaps” in this segment of the media’s news coverage even more vital for millions of Spanish-language media consumers.

As the Trump administration began to significantly step up immigration law enforcement during its first year in office, MRC Latino also focused on exposing the national Spanish-language media’s chronic anti-law enforcement stance, its deliberate failure to distinguish between legal and illegal immigration, and its dishonest use of the “anti-immigrant,” “anti-Latino,” and “racist” labels. Other 2017 highlights included calling out Univision anchor Jorge Ramos for hosting a virtual infomercial for Planned Parenthood, as well as championing euthanasia.

As MRC Latino moves into its fourth year, the program is battle-tested and ready to continue championing honest journalism and conservative views, while disrupting the Left’s persistent efforts to manipulate audiences in this significant segment of the U.S. media landscape.
MRC Business

HISTORY OF MRC BUSINESS

MRC Business was founded in 1992 (as the Free Enterprise and Media Institute) to promote a culture of free enterprise. The division addressed the serious issues created by the media’s business coverage which relied heavily on liberal guesswork to report on economics and frequently portrayed businessmen as evil and greedy caricatures.

In 2014, the division’s name changed to MRC Business to better reflect its mission. Over the years, the impact of its vital work confronting the liberal media’s business and economic biases continued growing.

Major accomplishments included the American Businessman reports which exposed the abundance of entertainment media portrayals of business people as criminals. The Washington Post covered the analysis on the front page of its business section.

MRC Business’ groundbreaking Fire & Ice report was the first to prove that the media’s climate change hype went back a century — switching from cooling to warming fears.

The division’s first report on liberal billionaire George Soros even received an estimated $25 million in publicity. The Soros Project, the ongoing effort to document and expose the financial influence of Soros (and other liberal mega-donors) on the media as well as leftist causes, is one of MRC Business’ most notable efforts.

MRC Business continues to work tirelessly to expose the media’s flawed coverage of taxes, regulation, industry, climate change and capitalism.

MRC Business is the preeminent champion of free enterprise against the liberal activist media. Since its inception, MRC Business has been the gold standard for accurate business and economic reporting and 2017 proved no exception, as MRC Business proudly blocked the national media’s attempts to mislead the public on economic issues.

In 2017, MRC Business staff appeared on more than 488 radio and 41 TV programs to discuss their groundbreaking research and take the lead in the national discussion of the economy. MRC Business articles were mentioned or discussed hundreds of times in the national media including such prominent outlets as Fox News Channel and Fox Business.

MRC Business launched a regular “Worst of the Week” feature on FoxNews.com in 2017. The series exposes the most egregious and ridiculous liberal media offenses of the previous week while also introducing MRC Business to wider audiences and earning the MRC significant website traffic.

Exposing Soros’ Connection to Women’s March Groups

One of MRC’s major endeavors of 2017 was the Soros Project, the ongoing effort to document and detail the nefarious influence of billionaire financier and leftist mega-donor George Soros and other liberal donors.

In March, MRC Business analysts revealed the connection between Soros and partners of the anti-Trump Women’s

The Soros Project is dedicated to documenting and exposing the contributions of left-wing billionaire George Soros and other mega-donors to liberal causes.
March. The exclusive report found that, while the billionaire didn’t fund the event directly, he had already donated more than $246 million to 100 of the march’s left-wing partners including Planned Parenthood, the Center for American Progress, and People for the American Way.

MRC Business’ report also highlighted the liberal media’s lack of coverage of negative moments from the march including involvement of the Communist Party, popstar Madonna’s tirade about wanting to blow up the White House, and the exclusion of pro-life women.

This year’s Soros report was mentioned on Fox News and Fox Business programming at least five times and shared more than 10,000 times on Facebook. MRC Business also reported Soros had given more than $36 million to groups behind the “People’s Climate March” in April.

The department exposed Soros and another liberal donor’s $1.3 million in giving to supposedly neutral fact-checking groups and proved that Soros gave to Media Matters five times, not once, as the left-wing activist group initially claimed.

Additionally, in October, MRC Business drew attention to Soros transferring $18 billion more from his hedge fund to his network of liberal groups, the Open Society Foundations (OSF). That was on top of the more than $14 billion Soros had already used to fund leftist causes through OSF.

Telling the Truth About the Economy

In addition to tracking liberal funding sources, MRC Business continued to hold the media accountable for its misleading reporting on the economy.

MRC Business repeatedly called attention to the fact that the national media ignored and downplayed positive news about job growth, economic growth, and the record-setting stock market. In March, MRC Business highlighted the fact that while economists linked optimism over President Trump’s proposed economic policies to the strong jobs report, the media minimized any connection.

Fighting Climate Bias

In 2017, MRC Business continued to fight the media’s environmental and climate change bias, making an impact by pointing out inaccuracies in Al Gore’s An Inconvenient Sequel as well as the movie’s box office failure. Additionally, MRC Business highlighted this hypocrisy in the article “Gore Flies Nearly 3,000 Miles to Tell Us to Stop Using Carbon-Based Fuels” which was shared on Facebook more than 7,700 times.
The entertainment industry erupted in outrage following Donald Trump’s election as President of the United States. With the rise of the industry’s “resistance” movement against the new administration, its new heights of hypocrisy, and unabated efforts to simultaneously push liberal causes and denigrate conservatives, MRC Culture was at the forefront in the effort to neutralize the pervasive liberal propaganda in entertainment programming.

In 2017, MRC Culture tracked and exposed more than 86 television programs that influence American society and documented their pattern of regular attacks on conservatives, including Hollywood’s incessant theme comparing Trump to Adolf Hitler. In addition to exposing and countering overt political bias, MRC Culture’s analysts also exposed the promotion of routine drug use, casual sex, and violence in popular comedies and dramas as well as the anti-religious, anti-family content regularly featured on entertainment programming aimed at young people.

Highlighting Hollywood Hypocrisy

MRC Culture’s focus on the hypocrisy of the entertainment industry proved timely as Hollywood was overrun by scandals related to sexual assault, harassment, and cover-up. The article “Jane Fonda: ‘It’s Ridiculous’ For Conservatives to Criticize Hollywood for Liberal Weinstein” highlighted Hollywood’s inability to recognize the corruption and bias in its industry and was read over 90,000 times, with a Facebook reach of over 150,000 people.

In 2017, MRC Culture staff made more than 600 appearances on national television and radio programs to discuss liberal bias, including on CNN, Fox News Channel, Fox Business, CBN, and One America News Network. MRC Culture also earned acclaim for a column in The MRC Culture routinely spotlighted Hollywood’s glaring hypocrisy, including that of leftist stalwarts like Lena Dunham.

Washington Post, titled “Feminist Attacks on Taylor Swift Reveal Something Very Ugly About the Movement” that highlighted the Left’s unrelenting attacks on pop singer Taylor Swift for her failure to promote leftist causes.

MRC Culture exposed Hollywood’s anti-gun double standard in the wake of the Las Vegas shooting in October. An MRC Culture report, covered in The Hollywood Reporter, The Washington Times and elsewhere, found that the top four box office movies the weekend of the massacre included 212 incidents of gun violence (at least 108 of them using automatic weapons) and a body count of at least 192.

Throughout 2017, MRC Culture continued to complement its media criticism with use of video and human interest stories to make a mark on the national conversation. This strategy proved effective, for example, when the New York Post and People magazine (which has a reach of more than 84 million people per month) both embedded MRC Culture footage of a pro-life rally on their websites, enabling the MRC to reach an even wider audience.

Standing Up for American Values

MRC Culture also continued to keep a sharp eye out for anti-Christian bias in the news and popular media, monitoring threats to religious freedom and pushing back against efforts to paint traditional morality as bigoted. For example, MRC Culture took the lead in calling out media outlets for citing the radical left Southern Poverty Law Center’s discredited “hate” research, as well as covering the media’s attempts to whitewash the ominous wave of Antifa violence.

The Left’s attack on American history was also on MRC Culture’s radar during 2017. In the run-up to Columbus Day, the program exposed and fought against media efforts to slander and seek to erase Christopher Columbus from American history. Along the same lines, MRC Culture called media liberals out when they denigrated America’s Founding Fathers over slavery.

When the NFL was thrown into chaos by the anti-American #TakeAKnee protests, MRC Culture was again on the front lines, castigating liberal media figures for their support of the protests and the former NFL quarterback who started them. MRC Culture exposés on the subject include articles such as “Colin Kaepernick, who Mocked Cops as Pigs, Called ‘Bridge Builder’ on CBS” and “USA Today Columnist: #TakeAKnee Marked One of NFL’s ‘Finest Moments’ Fighting Back Against ‘Racist’ Trump,” both of which reached more than 200,000 people on Facebook.

MRC Culture regularly calls attention to the media’s bias against traditional values. An MRC study demonstrating that the liberal media covered the Women’s March 129 times more than the March for Life highlighted this problem.
In 2017, CNSNews drove and informed the national debate despite the leftist media’s persistent attempts to dominate the news cycle.

The mission of CNSNews is to report the stories that the liberal media choose to distort, misreport, or simply ignore. In 2017, it did this by covering a broad range of issues including national security, the economy, taxes, and religious freedom.

Due to the strength and accuracy of its reporting, CNSNews stories reverberated through other media and were regularly picked up by major news sources including Drudge Report (14 million readers) and Yahoo! News (36 million readers). Syndicated radio hosts such as Rush Limbaugh, Sean Hannity, and Mark Levin, as well as media outlets ranging from Fox News to the Daily Mail, regularly featured CNSNews content. This brought massive exposure to important stories and introduced CNSNews to vast, and previously unreached, audiences.

Making an Impact

CNSNews’ impact was repeatedly demonstrated in 2017. On December 4, the White House tweeted the CNSNews piece “Refugee Admissions to U.S. Down 83% So Far in FY18.” The article highlighted the fact that, as of October 1, there has been an 83 percent drop in refugee admittance to the U.S. compared to the first two months of the previous fiscal year.

Earlier in 2017, the White House highlighted several other CNSNews articles, including “DOJ: Removal Orders for Illegals Rose 28 Percent in First 6 Months of Trump Administration” and “Manufacturing Jobs Hit Highest Level Since Obama’s Inauguration,” as part of its “West Wing Reads” series, which “rounds up the best stories the West Wing is reading.”

Country music legend Charlie Daniels is one of CNSNews’ most popular commentators.
Other influential individuals and institutions regularly shared CNSNews content on Twitter. Speaker of the House Paul Ryan, the NRA, Michelle Malkin, Jay Sekulow, the House Homeland Security Committee, among countless others, tweeted CNSNews articles on a wide range of topics.

Accurate Economic Reporting

As usual, CNSNews was on the forefront of tax coverage as well as federal spending and the national debt. In August, the CNSNews article “BLS: Americans Spend More on Taxes than Food and Clothing Combined” broke that shocking story and was cited by Drudge Report, Fox News, and the Daily Mail.

CNSNews frequently addressed the topics that the liberal media were too afraid to tackle — from social issues to the media’s own liberal bias. A CNSNews article reporting that able-bodied and healthy people would be required to work under Trump’s food stamp reform reached 1.5 million people on Facebook. The article “Kevin Sorbo Exposes Mainstream Media Bias with Simple Question on Donald Trump,” pointed to the liberal hypocrisy regarding Trump coverage vs. Clinton coverage and was read more than 300,000 times.

Setting the Standard in Conservative Commentary

In 2017, CNSNews had numerous successes but the CNSNews commentary section proved truly exceptional as it continued to deliver the very best in conservative opinion and analysis, covering a multitude of varied and interesting conservative topics.

Country music legend and perennial CNSNews favorite Charlie Daniels authored some of the most widely read pieces of the year. Daniels’ open letter to Senator Chuck Schumer criticizing Schumer’s obsession with the unproven Trump “collusion” with Russia narrative was read more than one million times. Additionally, his column “It’s Only a Matter of Time Before There Is Blood on the Streets” was read more than 500,000 times.

Other regular commentators included such noted conservatives as Ben Shapiro, Pat Buchanan, Brigitte Gabriel, and Hans von Spakovsky. Such guest commentaries offered CNSNews readers the opportunity to engage with writers with a variety of perspectives, opinions, and areas of expertise while at the same time expanding CNSNews’ reach and impact.
With a winning combination of fast-paced, engaging content and acerbic wit, MRCTV continued to drive huge audiences to its programming in 2017. MRCTV generated an average of over seven million video views each week throughout the year.

In 2017, MRCTV expanded its reach and influence by utilizing pop culture, video and social media, going beyond the traditional conservative base to reach the rising generation. Almost 20% of MRCTV’s 3.3 million Facebook fans are under 44 years old and, of MRCTV’s Twitter followers, a full 63% are part of the youth demographic, with most followers falling between the ages of 25-33.

Save the Snowflakes

When horrified university students (and faculty) erupted at the thought that America had actually elected Donald Trump president, MRCTV responded with humor. Inspired by the pitiful liberal responses to the election of President Trump and the implementation of a conservative agenda (such as the confirmation of Justice Gorsuch), MRCTV produced the “Save the Snowflakes” video campaign, poking fun at the most outrageous “snowflake” responses, such as demands for safe spaces and therapeutic coloring for “traumatized” young liberals at some of the most elite (and expensive) universities in the country. The Snowflake series went viral across social media, and was viewed more than six million times.

2017 also saw MRCTV make major strides with the production of several original series. MRCTV’s Reality Check, for example, has generated a legion of loyal fans... with unrelenting takedowns of the Left’s prevailing political narratives and political correctness. These commentaries, on such topics as the NFL protests and leftist hypocrisy, garner hundreds of thousands to millions of views each week. Reality Check is complemented by additional series, like Pause for a Moment, which calls out the very worst liberal propaganda on television while Wacky M.O.L.E. highlights each week’s most ridiculous moments of liberal expression.

The Best Conservative Content on the Internet

Along with original content, MRCTV aggregates stories and videos from across the web to bring the very best conservative content online to its growing audience. For example, after the assassination of NYPD police officer Miosotis Familia (a mother of three), her fellow officer Martin Green released a moving video about his frustration with the national news media’s constant attacks on the police. Officer Green’s original video was only viewed a few hundred times. However, when MRCTV edited, formatted, and posted his video on its platforms, the video went viral and was viewed 23 million times in just one day.

Throughout the year, both MRCTV’s content and talent received wide play on multiple national media platforms, including the Drudge Report, Fox News Channel, The Rush Limbaugh Show, TheBlaze, National Review Online, Townhall, The Daily Caller, and dozens of other prominent online media outlets.

In sum, MRCTV’s extraordinary ability to take conservative messages, conveyed through original productions, aggregated videos and blogs, get them out to a massive audience, and make them resonate has become a powerful tool for the MRC and its best means to reach and influence a younger audience.
MRC Action

HISTORY OF MRC ACTION

Although the Media Research Center had been utilizing email to spread the word about media bias for several years by 2004, the MRC recognized a need to start building an online army of activists who could not only educate themselves on the issue of liberal media bias but take action to fight back against it.

The MRC began building that army in 2005 as part of the organization’s first “Tell the Truth!” campaign. By the end of 2008, the MRC Action team had grown to just over 300,000 members.

In the early days, major grassroots campaigns consisted primarily of signing petitions and sending faxes to news organizations and government officials. More recently, the most effective efforts have involved phone and social media campaigns to produce a larger and more rapid response to the most egregious instances of liberal media bias. Within hours, MRC Action members can flood the phone lines and social media pages of the worst offenders.

In 2017 alone, there were four instances of these efforts paying off with public apologies, firings, or policy changes by the targets of MRC Action campaigns. For example, the “Fire Aslan” campaign resulted in 7,546 calls to CNN and the media crediting the MRC for Reza Aslan ultimately being fired. (See page 17.)

Today, there are over 650,000 MRC Action members, and combined with the MRC’s social media army, they generate over ten million citizen actions each year. These include signing petitions, making phone calls on MRC’s behalf, and sharing MRC media studies and analysis with their friends and family.

In 2017, MRC Action proved the strength of its active grassroots army and the deeply rooted commitment of its hundreds of thousands of members to combating liberal media bias. Over the course of the year, MRC Action executed rapid and effective grassroots campaigns that exposed liberal media bias and regularly compelled the liberal media to apologize, issue retractions, and even fire blatantly biased employees.

Fighting Back Against Liberal Attacks

In May, a George Soros-funded organization intent on silencing conservatives in the media took aim at Fox News Channel’s Hannity television show by targeting its advertisers. Adopting a campaign of intimidation, they bullied several advertisers into pulling their ads from Hannity, including USAA, a financial services firm serving primarily military families. USAA claimed their policy was to not advertise on opinion shows, however MRC’s News Analysis Division found that USAA continued to advertise on MSNBC opinion programs, including that of liberal stalwart Rachel Maddow.

MRC Action quickly generated over 1,700 phone calls to USAA with complaints about their hypocrisy. MRC Action members also flooded USAA’s website and social media sites with comments. Many MRC Action members were customers of USAA and some even cancelled their policies.

Less than a week after pulling their ads from Hannity, USAA reversed their decision, and the Associated Press credited the MRC with mobilizing the backlash against USAA.

In May, when “comedian” Kathy Griffin posed for a photo with a fake severed head of President Donald Trump, many people expressed outrage, but CNN (where Griffin hosted the annual New Year’s Eve special) remained silent. After MRC Action generated over 2,500 calls to CNN, the company announced that it had terminated its contract with Griffin.

In June, Reza Aslan, host of CNN’s Believer series (and the man CNN referred to as a “religious scholar”), tweeted that President Trump was a “piece of s---.” It was the latest in a series of vulgar statements made by Aslan on social media. MRC President Brent Bozell sent an open letter to CNN President Jeff Zucker and appeared on Hannity to demand CNN sever ties with Aslan. MRC Action launched a “Fire Aslan” call-in campaign, which resulted in 7,546 calls to CNN executive offices. When CNN finally fired Aslan, multiple news outlets credited the MRC for spearheading the effort to have him removed.

MRC Action also conducted several grassroots campaigns aimed at raising public awareness for the most egregious examples of liberal media bias. After NBC’s Chuck Todd attempted to legitimize the domestic terror organization Antifa by providing them with a platform on his TV show, MRC Action launched a petition demanding the media expose the violent group and their tactics. Over 2,500 people called NBC to complain, and 20,554 people signed the petition. Another petition demanding the media cover the Clinton-Russia-Uranium scandal also generated thousands of signatures.

For years, the left has been intimidating conservatives with impunity. MRC Action proved in 2017 that it has the resources and ability to fight back and achieve concrete results.
In September, the Media Research Center celebrated its 30th Anniversary with a speakeasy-themed bash that will undoubtedly be remembered for the next 30 years. The 2017 Gala and DisHonors Awards brought together nearly a thousand of the MRC’s friends and supporters along with a host of conservative luminaries to mark this special milestone.

The brilliant Cal Thomas emceed the festivities while Saturday Night Live legend Joe Piscopo presented the funniest media and viral video hits of the year. Talk radio host Chris Plante and Fox News contributor Mollie Hemingway served as DisHonors award presenters.

As is tradition, the mock awards were accepted, in jest, by conservative leaders on behalf of the liberal “winners.” This year’s accepters included Greg Mueller, Brigitte Gabriel, Rep. Mark Meadows (R- N.C.), and Jeffrey Lord.

Brian Williams earned the Dan Rather Memorial Award for the Stupidest Analysis for his commentary following the death of murderous dictator Fidel Castro. Williams stated, “It’s still one of those nations (Cuba) where you see donkey carts alongside cars, trucks and buses in downtown Havana, because that’s exactly what they’d rather have for transportation.”

Other “winners” included CNN’s Douglas Brinkley (Last Gasp Obamagasm Award) for citing Obama’s “scandal free” presidency, Ashley Judd (Kathy Griffin Celebrity Dumbass Award) for her deranged Women’s March speech, and Every Single Person We Don’t Like in the Media (Trumpocalypse Award) for the cavalcade of onscreen meltdowns following the November 2016 election.

Nationally syndicated radio host Mark Levin addressed the audience, via video, declaring that only the MRC “has the know-how, the resources and the dedication” to track liberal bias 24/7.

The MRC was honored to welcome radio legend Rush Limbaugh to the celebration and was humbled by his remarks on the impact the MRC has had on him and his program. Limbaugh declared, “Brent Bozell and the Media Research Center, and now NewsBusters, are … a fundamental element of my show prep every day. And they always have been, they always will be.”
Radio talk show host Rush Limbaugh delivered an impassioned speech on the importance of the fight against liberal media bias and the MRC’s crucial role in that battle.

Gala presenters and accepters joined MRC president Brent Bozell to judge the audience response for the Quote of the Year.

Karl Ottosen, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Media Research Center, was honored.

Since 1999, the MRC has hosted its annual Gala and DisHonors Awards, a one-of-a-kind event roasting the liberal media. Over the years, leaders from across the conservative movement — many of them pictured here — have participated in this uproarious event as either presenters, accepters or special guests. Musical guests have included The Outlaws, The Davisson Brothers Band, and the great Charlie Daniels. Broadcast on C-SPAN and Fox News several times, the event has also been picked up by countless media outlets across the nation.
KEN BLACKWELL
Senior Fellow, Family Research Council
“The Media Research Center is a beacon of light in a sea of media darkness .... MRC is a great force for evening the playing field so that we can engage civically and politically in honest and forceful debate.”

MORTON BLACKWELL
President, The Leadership Institute
“The MRC helps the whole country and it helps the whole conservative movement. The vast majority of the American public today distrusts and dislike most of the news media and the reason for that is Brent Bozell’s Media Research Center, which has for now 30 years been exposing the lies and biased news reporting.”

DAVID BOSSIE
President, Citizens United
“Brent Bozell and your team at MRC are the groundbreaking forces that have brought to light all of the left’s attempt through the media to really overcome the conservative movement since Ronald Reagan. I don’t know how we would get along without it.”

THE HON. TED CRUZ
United States Senator (R-TX)
“The Media Research Center has diligently and fearlessly taken on one of the biggest barriers to advancing our conservative principles — liberal media bias. Congratulations on 30 years of exceptional work.”

CHARLIE DANIELS
Singer, Songwriter, Nationally Syndicated Columnist
“Our media has been pretty one-sided for the last several decades .... having [MRC] on the scene, it kind of levels the playing field somewhat: it gives people a place to go. I appreciate you a bunch: for telling the truth, telling it like it is, and letting people know the real story. Let’s go for another thirty. Congratulations!”

BRIGITTE GABRIEL
Founder, ACT for America
“What would we do without the MRC and all the amazing work they do in supporting, protecting, educating and getting our voices out. Because, God knows, they [liberal media] are trying to drown us. Thank you for your leadership, your vision and for dedication to the cause, for protecting the conservative movement. We all can lean on the MRC to support us.”

MARK LEVIN
Radio Talk Show Host
“The MRC is a North Star for the conservative movement. No one talks about an objective media because they know, thanks to the work of the MRC, there’s no such thing. Only the MRC has the know-how, the resources and the dedication to track liberal bias 24/7. MRC and Brent Bozell are national treasures. I rely on them all the time. They watch that crap so we don’t have to.”

MARJORIE DANNENFELSER
President, Susan B. Anthony List
“Congratulations Media Research Center for 30 years of truth-telling; it has made an enormous difference. The MRC and Brent Bozell have always been a unifier for the conservative movement.”

LEE EDWARDS
Distinguished Fellow, Heritage Foundation
“Brent Bozell, you are the man! You have been doing a fantastic job. Keep up the great work, and keep giving the networks and all the reporters ‘you know what.’”

TOM FITTON
President, Judicial Watch
“The Media Research Center is an essential resource. Liberals have argued that media bias is in the eyes of the beholder, and the MRC supplies conservatives with the information to show that that’s not true. Media bias is factual and can be documented.”
PENNY NANCE
CEO and President, Concerned Women for America
“Media Research Center has always been our go-to for holding the mainstream media accountable. Without them, the media are free to allege anything, to take what we’ve said out of context and use it against us unfairly. It’s great to have MRC fighting on our side.”

BECKY NORTON DUNLOP
Ronald Reagan Distinguished Fellow, Heritage Foundation
“Fox and some of the other outlets that are coming up out there actually owe their success to Brent Bozell and the MRC who were out there taking other networks to task for not speaking truth.”

GROVER NORQUIST
President, Americans for Tax Reform
“We all know that we have a friend and an ally [MRC] who has softened up the opposition by making sure people understand the establishment press is not just an umpire or an unbiased observer; they’re often a player, out there fighting for the left. Congratulations on the Media Research Center’s success!”

PATRICK REILLY
President, Cardinal Newman Society
“I think the conventional wisdom today is that the media is not presenting the truth, and that is wholly due to the work of the Media Research Center. It has had a great impact on our culture.”

RICHARD VIGUERIE
Chairman, Conservative HQ
“Who’s watching the watchers? Only MRC. Without MRC out there, most of the areas of the mainstream media — the fake news out there — would go unknown by the American people, so MRC has had a huge impact. I’d hate to think where we would be as a country, as a movement, as a cause without the MRC’s leadership.”

RUSH LIMBAUGH
Radio Talk Show Host
“Brent Bozell, the Media Research Center and NewsBusters are a fundamental element of my show prep daily, and they always have been and they always will be. It’s always going to be needed, worthwhile and entertaining. A great combination.”

DAVID MCINTOSH
President, Club for Growth
“The Media Research Center has been a voice for truth and leadership in the conservative movement. The MRC has been invaluable and its been a great support. They are there on the front lines pushing the media to tell the truth about what the government does to hurt Americans and take away our freedom.”

THE HON. MARK MEADOWS
U.S. Representative (R-NC)
“Brent Bozell and the Media Research Center, and the work they’ve done, allows us to have a level playing field, where true conservatives can stand up and be sure their voice is being heard.”

THE HON. MARK MIX
President, National Right to Work
“Brent, thank you for your hard work over the last thirty years, and for your team at MRC for doing the work they do to hold the media accountable for their views as it relates to issues of liberty and freedom.”

STEPHEN MOORE
Distinguished Visiting Fellow, Heritage Foundation
“The Media Research Center, one of the most important institutions in the conservative movement. [They are] the first group to really focus a spotlight on the media’s daily left-wing media bias. The MRC is one of the reasons why so many millions of Americans today don’t believe the liberal media.”

30 YEARS
Documenting, Exposing, and Neutralizing Liberal Media Bias

When the Media Research Center was founded in 1987, few could have imagined that the fledgling organization, comprised of only a handful of staff with few resources, could possibly challenge a multi-billion dollar industry like the liberal news media.

However, from the very beginning, Brent Bozell and his motivated team were determined to build the MRC into the nation’s premier media watchdog group and a major powerhouse within the conservative movement.

Thirty years later, that vision has been realized. The MRC’s reputation as a leader in shaping the media landscape is now firmly established. Admired by conservatives and feared by liberals, the MRC’s influence across America’s culture is ubiquitous.

An Indispensable Resource

The MRC now houses a sophisticated media monitoring operation and one of the largest archives of news footage in America. Academics, historians, producers, and journalists regularly seek out the MRC’s archived news footage which is not available anywhere else.

The MRC’s two-fold purpose of advancing conservative principles by documenting, exposing, and neutralizing liberal media bias, while also serving as an indispensable resource for individuals and organizations, makes the MRC truly unique.

Empowering the Conservative Movement

The MRC is a powerful force within the conservative movement. Its publications, analysis, and commentary on topics ranging from the liberal media’s false narrative on the economy to their undermining of traditional American values are regularly sought out by prominent conservative outlets across the country. The MRC reaches millions of people every day through its social media presence and websites, as well as its frequent appearances on television and radio.

The following timeline lists just some of the many significant MRC moments in the years since its founding. While this list is by no means complete, it offers insight into how the MRC grew in size, scope and influence over the past 30 years.
Media Research Center is established in Alexandria, Virginia, with a staff of ten.

MRC is the first conservative organization to document liberal media bias through both quantitative and qualitative analysis.

MRC begins to compile what is now one of the world's largest news video archives.

Two months after the MRC's founding, it launches MediaWatch, a monthly newsletter dedicated to documenting bias in the media.

Conservative policy makers, legislators, talk show hosts, and columnists immediately begin spreading the MRC's research across the country.

Notable Quotables, a bi-weekly compilation of the most egregious distortions by the national media, is launched.

MRC President Brent Bozell takes to the airwaves with the MediaWatch Radio Report, a weekly commentary syndicated on more than 400 stations nationwide.

The MRC produces daily ConventionWatch reports, analyzing live coverage of both national party conventions.

Following the party conventions, the MRC holds a national press conference to highlight the TV networks' double-standard in covering the events.

The MRC begins monitoring morning news shows.

The MRC Entertainment Division is launched to analyze television, movies, and music and document Hollywood's liberal activism.

The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and the Screen Actors Guild both pass resolutions unanimously condemning the MRC for “…[informing] the networks, producers, advertisers, and consumer[s] of the ‘liberal’ leanings of TV, and of the ‘leftist’ political agenda of certain stars, actors, and productions on TV.”

By the end of 1989, the MRC's staff grows to 15 and the annual budget to $1.3 million.

- MRC releases a major study exposing the political backgrounds of journalists who pass through the ‘revolving door’ between the news media and political organizations.
- The study proves, by a factor of 3 to 1, there are more liberals than conservatives in the press.
- MRC publishes And That's the Way It Isn't: A Reference Guide to Media Bias — a book containing 45 scientific studies and polls — and sells more than 100,000 copies.
- By the end of 1990, the MRC’s staff grows to 19 and the annual budget to $1.7 million.

- MRC expands its reach as MRC President Brent Bozell launches a twice-weekly nationally syndicated column on news and entertainment.
- As the Gulf War heats up, MRC documents the media’s bias against the Bush administration.
- MRC is profiled in Time magazine, and its study on bias in The Washington Post sparks a heated debate on The McLaughlin Group.
- The MRC archives expand to 25,200 hours of news programming.

- Only five years after its inception, the MRC is widely regarded as America’s leading resource on liberal bias in the news and entertainment industries.
- MRC findings are cited in virtually every major print outlet and are regularly featured on television shows.
- Major network journalists, including Tim Russert and Sam Donaldson, address the MRC’s annual Board of Trustees meeting.
- MRC launches the Free Enterprise and Media Institute (now MRC Business) to address the media’s constant assault on businessmen and the culture of free enterprise.
- MRC Internship Program is established.

“Four [MRC] analysts are poring over every word uttered by network journalists this week. They’re looking for bias against conservatives, and they find it everywhere they turn the channel. [MRC’s publications] have developed a high-powered readership. ‘I read it and digest it,’ says NBC’s Tim Russert. ‘I find it informative.’”

• The MRC exposes the liberal media’s refusal to report negative news about the Clinton administration.

• The MRC publishes the results of a year-long study of how the media portray the economy and free enterprise in the landmark book Out of Focus: Network Television and the American Economy.

• The first MRC “Special Reports” examine the exaggeration of issues that drive billion-dollar government programs and expose entertainment companies’ donations to liberal causes.

• MRC’s staff grows to 20 and the annual budget to $2.2 million.

• Washingtonian magazine profiles Brent Bozell and names the MRC “the fastest growing media watching outfit around.”

• MRC publishes the primer How to Identify, Expose and Correct Liberal Media Bias by Brent Baker for grassroots conservatives seeking ways to combat liberal media bias at the state and local level.

• MRC media coverage continues to grow, as 116 magazines, newspapers and newsletters publish MRC research and analysis.

• MRC spokesmen appear on 106 radio and television talk shows.

• The MRC responds to President Bill Clinton’s slanderous charge that conservative talk radio was a contributing factor in the Oklahoma City bombing. MRC President Brent Bozell offers $100,000 to Clinton’s favorite charity if he can name a single national talk show host advocating terrorism against the American people.

• MRC releases a study Revolving Door Spins More for Clinton Administration than Bush’s documenting those in the media who had left to assume political positions in each administration.

• The MRC launches its first-ever grassroots membership drive to activate conservatives at a local level.

- MRC launches its first website, MediaResearch.org.
- CyberAlert daily email newsletter debut.
- The MRC launches the $2.78 million “Tell the Truth!” campaign, an ambitious project designed to neutralize the media’s distorted coverage of the presidential race.
- MRC publishes Pattern of Deception: The Media’s Role in the Clinton Presidency, a look at how the liberal media promoted Bill Clinton’s agenda by downplaying or ignoring his many scandals.

“This book should be intensively studied in every journalism course and newsroom in the country.”
RUSH LIMBAUGH — 1996

- The MRC continues to generate media coverage about the Clinton fundraising scandals, while exposing the networks’ non-coverage of the scandals.
- MRC begins weekly Media Reality Check fax reports, continues its nightly e-mailed CyberAlert newsletter, and supplements the publications with daily appearances by MRC spokesmen on television and radio.
- The campaign succeeds in making the media and their politically motivated cover-up a national issue, shaming the networks into finally beginning to cover Clinton scandals.
- The MRC’s impact is confirmed by a Pew Research Center survey that shows 67% of Americans believe news organizations “tend to favor one side,” in social and political issues, a 14-point increase from 1985.

- MRC analyzes the media’s inadequate and slanted coverage of the Monica Lewinsky scandal. ABC’s Nightline credits the MRC with “breaking the stranglehold of big media corporations.”
- Conservative News Service, now CNSNews, is launched to report the news the liberal media refuse to cover.
- MRC adds video and audio clips to its website to allow visitors to see and hear the reporters’ biases.
- MRC’s staff grows to 46 and the annual budget to $5.6 million.
• The MRC hosts its first “DisHonors Awards: The Decade’s Most Outrageous Liberal Bias” and is honored to have Justice Clarence Thomas accept an “award” on behalf of USA Today’s Julianne Malveaux, who had expressed her wish that Thomas “die of heart disease.”

• The MRC launches “Bias by the Minute,” a custom-built database which allows the MRC to quickly generate quantitative proof of media bias.

• NewsBusters exposes NBC News anchor Brian Williams’ lie that he came under fire in Iraq by producing MRC archive footage of his original 2003 report. MRC’s documentation ultimately contributed to Williams’ dismissal.

• MRCTV’s hilarious memes depicting Brian Williams at historical events (including the battles of Gettysburg and Iwo Jima) go viral — appearing across the internet, on TV, and even in the Los Angeles Times.

• MRC Latino holds a “Summit of Conservative Communicators,” bringing together dozens of Spanish-language communicators to work to counter bias in the 2016 campaign. The New York Times, the Los Angeles Times, and Politico cite MRC Latino’s analysis for information about Hispanic media coverage of the presidential campaign.

• CNSNews makes an impact on the national debate by reporting on the rising threat of radical Islamic terrorism and the ongoing attacks on freedom of religion and the right to life.

• MRC grows its Facebook fan count to more than 9.4 million, reaching more than 25 million people weekly through social media.

Senator Rand Paul (R-KY) and MRC president Brent Bozell discuss the importance of reaching out to Spanish-speaking Americans at a symposium launching MRC Latino. — 2014

In high demand, MRC spokesmen appear on 176 major TV news programs in 2014
• MRC has its most successful year ever in 2016 as MRC staff and members work to ensure that the American people — not the liberal media — elect the next president.

• MRC launches its comprehensive “Tell the Truth!” 2016 campaign.

• MRC’s “Bias by the Minute” studies are a massive hit, especially one showing that 91% of broadcast media stories on Donald Trump following the GOP convention were hostile. Donald Trump himself references it on Fox News.

• MRC Latino launches the “Ramos Must Go!” campaign when Univision anchor Jorge Ramos openly endorses Hillary Clinton. The campaign generates 10,000 petition signers and delivers a blow to Univision’s credibility.

• MRC Business continues to dig deep on George Soros’ funding of liberal groups, highlighting $61 million given to media groups pushing Clinton’s agenda.

• MRC Culture takes on Hollywood, exposing actress Lena Dunham’s tone deaf statement that she was sorry she had never had an abortion. The story creates a firestorm and Dunham is forced to apologize.

• CNSNews reports on Secretary of State John Kerry’s statement that he wasn’t sure if ISIS was committing genocide against Christians. The story sparks national outrage and forces Kerry to confirm the genocide.

• MRCTV continues to grow with hard-hitting exposés and popular videos. MRCTV’s own Brittany Hughes’ commentary on liberal media “snowflakes” reaches an impressive 8.7 million people.

In August of 2016, the media were welcomed to the Democratic National Convention in Cleveland by traditional billboards, massive MRC wall projections (right), signs, sidewalk stickers, and TV ads in taxicabs.

LTC Allen B. West Accepts A New Important Mission

The Media Research Center is proud to announce prominent conservative LTC Allen B. West, USA, Ret., has been named a Senior Fellow at the MRC to support its mission to expose and neutralize liberal media bias.

In addition to his 22 years in the United States Army, Lt. Colonel West's extensive career includes representing Florida's 22nd District in the 112th United States Congress and serving as Executive Director at the National Center for Policy Analysis in Dallas, TX.

He is a Fox News contributor and a member of the NRA's Board of Directors.
Dear Friends of the MRC,

For nearly two decades, my husband Jim and I have been proud supporters of the Media Research Center, the largest and most effective media watchdog in America. Never, in all that time, have we had cause to regret our firm friendship with the MRC, nor been more proud to be part of the MRC than we are right now.

For 30 years, the MRC has served as a beacon of light, driving out the darkness spread by the corrupt liberal media. In the face of seemingly insurmountable obstacles, they have emerged victorious, time and time again.

The reason for the MRC’s success is the same reason Jim and I have been so proud to stand with them for so long. The MRC is an organization rooted in principle. Brent Bozell and his talented staff are deeply committed to the simple idea that our American values, our democracy, and our culture should not be corrupted by an activist media.

The MRC’s commitment to this ideal and their willingness to challenge those who would distort and hide the truth is nothing short of heroic. It has rightly won the admiration of countless supporters like us, all across the country.

This past year, I was deeply impressed by the MRC’s spectacular efforts. When the liberal media fought to sabotage the Trump administration and smear the American people who put the president into office, the MRC fought back.

Throughout the year, the MRC documented the media’s unceasing attacks against the president and their unprecedented levels of negative bias towards him and his agenda. MRC’s “Bias by the Minute” reports found the nightly networks’ news coverage of the president was 90% negative the entire year.

The MRC refused to let this bias go unchallenged and used its unparalleled research capabilities to expose the liberal media for what they truly are — determined leftists intent on imposing their agenda on the American people.

The MRC’s work is more important now than ever. The liberal media have shown their true colors and made their position clear. They are opposed to traditional American values such as free speech, faith, and patriotism, and to those Americans who treasure these sacred things. The media will try to undermine any possible conservative efforts now and in the foreseeable future. They will support leftist candidates in the 2018 Congressional elections and beyond.

But the MRC will be there to challenge the media every step of the way. It will ensure that the liberal media will never have the last word in the national debate.

The MRC’s commitment to its mission, its dedication to truth, guarantee its continued success. Please, join me in supporting the MRC and their critical work in 2018.

Sincerely,

Melissa Emery
Chairman of the MRC Board of Trustees
The MRC Legacy Society

The Media Research Center’s Legacy Society is a special community of individuals who understand the battle against the leftist media will — and must — continue long after they have passed on. These dedicated and patriotic conservatives have the foresight to ensure that the MRC will have the resources to continue the fight for decades to come. They have included the MRC in their estate plans by setting up a Charitable Gift Annuity, or through bequests, or through a variety of other planned giving vehicles. Steve and Raffaella Feinstein of Foxborough, MA serve as co-chairs of the MRC’s Legacy Society. For more information on tax-deductible options available to you through the MRC Legacy Society, please call Robert Croft, MRC Vice President of Development, at 571-267-3500 or email him at rcroft@mrc.org.

Joe and Louise Wilkens Graciously Helped the MRC to Grow as its First Legacy Society Members

Joe Wilkens and his wife Louise Sperber — sadly, she passed away on March 30, 2017 — had had enough. As a retired small business owner, Joe saw the America he had grown up loving was under attack, and so was honesty and truthfulness in the media. He believed strongly in the need to keep the media accountable.

Joe said,

“Accuracy and honesty in the media are a valued commodity which is needed in a free society. Both Louise and I feel that today’s news is actually reported through the eyes of ‘editorialists.’ The Media Research Center highlights these problems and allows us to see a more complete story. This is a must in order to sustain our free democracy.”

Joe and Louise decided in September 2009 to greatly increase their impact, while also considering their legacy. So, Joe called the MRC and set up a Charitable Gift Annuity (CGA). A year later, he increased his annual support, and set up a second CGA.

At the same time, the MRC formally established the Legacy Society as a means of honoring our most committed supporters, those who have included the MRC in their estate plans to ensure the MRC’s mission would continue long after they themselves can no longer participate.

That December, in 2010, Brent asked Joe to become the first chairman of the Legacy Society, and Joe accepted. Since that time, more than 50 individuals have joined MRC’s Legacy Society, making the ultimate commitment to create a media culture where truth and liberty flourish.

In 2011, Louise set up a third CGA and included the Media Research Center in her will a few years later. Part of her estate was given to the MRC in the form of a generous, six-figure gift. Although Louise is no longer with us today, we are honored to carry her legacy forward.
The MRC produces and distributes a massive amount of content each day. From news analysis, to original reporting, to email messaging and social media posts, the MRC’s dedicated team is relentless in its drive to expose and neutralize liberal media bias.
The Media Research Center’s Internship Program is one of the premier internship programs in the Washington, DC public policy and media arena.

For over a decade, the MRC has helped more than 300 bright, hardworking, and committed young people gain the skills necessary to fight back against the media’s leftist agenda, speak up for their values, be a voice for patriotic Americans everywhere, and succeed in a competitive world.

Interns benefit from on-the-job training in news analysis, journalism, marketing, and fundraising as well as a curriculum that includes lectures from senior MRC staff and prominent conservative leaders, the chance to attend prestigious D.C. events, and many exciting networking opportunities.

In 2017, MRC interns (including the largest summer intern class ever—21 interns!) continued to make a significant impact within the organization and as an added force helping further MRC’s mission to expose and neutralize the liberal media.

Below is a sample of the impressive accomplishments of some of the 2017 MRC Interns:

- CNSNews intern Zenny Phuong’s story “DOJ Releases 400-Plus Pages of Lynch-Clinton Meeting Emails – After Comey’s FBI Said No Records Existed” was viewed more than 200,000 times and featured on major outlets including Google News and Yahoo! News.
- NAD intern Alex Xenos’ study “Consumed: CNN New Day Spends 93% of Airtime on Russia” was picked up by Tucker Carlson Tonight, Fox & Friends, Breitbart, Drudge, and The Daily Wire.
- MRC Business intern James Powers’ piece “Trump Tax Rate Actually Three Times Higher Than Media Reported” earned MRC Business a number of radio interviews because it was such a timely talking point.

The MRC is committed to developing the next generation of conservative leaders, writers, analysts, and young professionals and is especially proud to welcome former interns onto the team. This year, intern Corinne Weaver joined the MRC Culture staff as a writer and research analyst and has already proven to be a great asset to the MRC.
