The Mueller Report proved there was no collusion with Russia and revealed there was no evidence to warrant a charge of obstruction against the president, undeniable facts which destroyed the liberal media’s foremost means of removing President Trump from office. Mueller popped the leftist press’ balloon. Nonetheless, the liberal media have no intention of giving in or admitting they were wrong. They’ve adjusted their narrative to push for Trump’s impeachment as the 2020 election cycle kicks in.

Impeachment talk was on the rise. Mueller did not charge President Trump with a crime but the leftist media clearly are indicting the president.

Let’s look at some other examples. On the June 9 edition of MSNBC’s AM Joy, hosted by former Obama campaign aide Joy Reid, the word impeachment was used no less than 46 times. Not one person on the program defended the president.

That occurred only a few days after Robert Mueller had given a 10-minute press conference (on May 29), in which he had repeated the conclusions of his 448-page report but which the liberal media translated as code for impeachment.

As ABC’s Terry Moran said that day, “This is Robert Mueller saying to Congress do your job. It is time to take this [impeachment] up.” ABC’s George Stephanopoulos agreed, saying it “does seem to be an implication” to impeach.

Over at NBC’s Today, anchor Savannah Guthrie divined the hidden meaning behind Mueller’s press conference: “He’s without using that word reminding folks that there is a process and it’s called impeachment.”

The liberal clairvoyants at CBS also read coded messages “embedded” in Mueller’s remarks. CBS This Morning’s Tony Dokoupil pressed reporter Major Garrett, “What words stood out to you?
Or he’s just telling the truth, and not delivering Ouija-board-like messages to the press.

At CNN, Chris Cuomo compared Congress’ need to impeach Trump to D-Day and ordered lawmakers to “do your duty.” He also read what the Constitution says about impeachment and challenged Democrats, “It is time to stop acting out of fear of consequence and act on good conscience.”

In other words, impeach the president! Aren’t you listening to us?

NBC’s Kasie Hunt whined, “What more do congressional Democrats need to hear before they make a decision about impeachment? … Why not begin impeachment proceedings?” NBC’s Chuck Todd warned, “What is this going to look like if something else pops up in two months and we haven’t done this [impeachment]? Or if he [Trump] wins reelection and you didn’t do this?”

Not to be outdone, the New York Times’ editorial page posted “The Articles of Impeachment Against Donald J. Trump: A Draft” on June 5. The document claims Trump “engaged personally” in a plan to “delay, impede, and obstruct the investigation” of Russians who interfered in the 2016 election.

Obviously, the leftist media do not care about facts or reporting actual news. Their goal is to destroy President Trump. The MRC is tracking, documenting, exposing, and neutralizing their liberal bias 24/7. You can help us in this good fight by making a donation to our non-profit organization.

Use the reply card and postage-paid envelope enclosed with this newsletter to send your most generous gift today.

Sincerely,

L. Brent Bozell III
Founder and President

Continued from page 1

What messages were embedded in those remarks?” Garrett replied that it was like a Jeopardy question, “There’s a process other than the Justice Department to charge a sitting president. What’s the answer? The answer is impeachment.”

CBS’s Paula Reid stated, “Many Democrats, including a number of candidates for president, took Mueller’s statement as a call to impeach.” CBS’s Gayle King deciphered that many Democrats say “Congress must start an impeachment investigation of President Trump. They believe that Robert Mueller wants them to do it.”

Bear in mind that Mueller said nothing about impeachment and only repeated what his two-year, 19-lawyers, 40 FBI agents, 500 search warrants, 2,800 subpoenas, $35-million investigation found: no collusion and no evidence to prove obstruction.

Nonetheless, CNN’s Gloria Borger declared, “If you read between the lines, he [Mueller] made it completely clear that if they could’ve done it, they would’ve done it.”

MSNBC’s Nicole Wallace was apoplectic: “I always say it’s so much worse than Watergate, he’s [Trump’s] an unindicted co-conspirator in an illegal hush-money scheme.” Wallace then presented former FBI official Frank Figliuzzi, who was nearly hysterical, huffing that “we’re moving toward an imperial presidency.”

MSNBC’s Joe Scarborough was more absurd, declaring that House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) leading the impeachment of President Trump would be like Abraham Lincoln freeing the slaves.

Also in fantasy-land was MSNBC’s Chris Matthews. “To impeach or not to impeach?” he pondered on-air. “That is the question that now confronts House Democrats. … [T]he moment of decision has clearly arrived.”

Matthews also quoted a tweet, “Mueller is, in his own Mueller-like way, screaming for presidential impeachment proceedings. But he’s too respectful to say it as directly as America (and Congress) evidently needs him to say it.”
MRC Leads Fight Against CENSORSHIP OF CONSERVATIVES
on Facebook, Google, YouTube, Apple and Twitter

Over a year ago, the MRC published its groundbreaking report, Censored! How Online Media Companies Are Suppressing Conservative Speech, and launched the Free Speech Alliance (FSA), a coalition of 52 conservative organizations committed to protecting conservative speech in America. Those efforts, among others, are paying off because the Department of Justice announced on June 3 that it is opening an antitrust investigation into Google.

In February, the MRC and the FSA had sent a letter, signed by 32 conservative leaders, to Attorney General William Barr. The letter urged him to open an investigation into Google, Facebook and Twitter. This was the first formal written request made to the new attorney general to investigate big tech’s lack of transparency, censorship, and bias.

The letter stated, “Respecting these entities’ own constitutional rights, we believe there nevertheless is ample probable cause of antitrust violations and of conspiracy to violate the constitutional rights of conservatives, and possible collusion to violate laws governing America’s campaign finance system and elections.”

Following the DOJ’s announcement, MRC President Brent Bozell said, “I applaud the DOJ for heeding our call. Online giants Google, Facebook and Twitter wield unprecedented power to shape public opinion and even directly influence elections. And it is crystal clear that they are using that power to silence conservatives and advance their own liberal agenda rather than creating a neutral marketplace of ideas.”

“Left unchecked, these tech companies represent the greatest threat to liberty in our lifetimes, and Google’s search engine is perhaps the most dangerous of all,” he said.

June 3, incidentally, was the same day that Bozell appeared in a PragerU video posted on YouTube and entitled, “Big Tech is Big Brother.” The video sketched the history of Apple and its revolutionary personal computers, which gave tremendous power to individuals to learn, create, and exchange ideas. It then detailed how the social media giants, which once offered so much freedom to individuals, have become Orwellian — controlling, censoring, oppressing.

“Our former liberators now want to be our masters,” states Bozell in the video. “Apple, Google, Facebook, YouTube and Twitter. The giants of social media are demanding conformity to their values. It’s their way or the highway. Conform or die. … They are becoming the Big Brother Orwell foresaw.”

The video urges people and organizations to fight back against the censorship of conservatives on social media, to compel the tech giants to allow ideas to flourish in the marketplace and “let people make up their own minds.”

The MRC’s Censored! report was cited by conservative congressmen four times in April 2018 hearings held to investigate social media bias against conservatives. An FSA letter signed by 40 conservative leaders and sent to the tech giants was carried by the Drudge Report, reaching millions of people. Bozell and FSA representatives have met numerous times with officials from Facebook, Google, and Twitter to work towards a solution that protects conservative speech online. Bozell has also met with the House Freedom Caucus to brief them on the problem. As he has explained, with the future of American conservatism hanging in the balance on the outcome of the fight against online censorship, the MRC needs the entire conservative movement with us to win.
Acosta Spin

In what is likely one of the more laughable and surreal examples of outright left-wing pretense, CNN’s Jim Acosta told Publisher’s Weekly that he had never seen a news organization willfully slant its coverage for political reasons. “I have never witnessed a concerted effort by any news organization to take a stand one way or the other on a political issue, to damage one particular party or help another,” Acosta absurdly claimed.

“We have been far more honest and straightforward with the American people than President Trump has,” said the doyen of Fake News. “Are there times when we fall short? Sure. But the press issues corrections. When was the last time you saw the president issue a correction or a clarification? It’s a rare thing for Donald J. Trump.”

“This is CNN!”

TIME for Abortion

The periodical dinosaur TIME magazine showed it is still committed to the liberal cause by running a story in June about a small hotel in Yale, Michigan that is providing free lodging and transportation for women coming to have abortions. The article swoons over hotel owner Shelly O’Brian, who advertised her offer on Facebook. There was an “enormous response,” cheered TIME. “I’ve been flooded with overwhelmingly positive responses,” O’Brian said. “I have little old ladies coming in and writing me $25 checks to put towards the cause.”

Not surprisingly, TIME predictably reported that O’Brian apparently had received threats, “people threatening to burn my building down ... venomous hatred.” TIME added that O’Brian may have to beef-up security and concluded by quoting her, “My grandkids live here. I don’t think people understand that we have heartbeats too.”

Just another day at TIME magazine.
Illegal Reporters

The Washington Post is giddy that a California elementary school is being named after Jose Antonio Vargas, a gay, illegal alien reporter, who started working at The Post in 2004. Vargas didn’t reveal he was an illegal when he took the job and when his editor found out, he kept it secret for seven years. Writing about the Mountain View, Calif., school’s decision, columnist Jay Mathews crowed, “Notice that I didn’t call Vargas an American. He feels he is one. So do many people who know him, including me. The federal government doesn’t agree.”

Quoting a teacher who adores Vargas — now an illegal alien celebrity — Mathews related that the new school name would send “a strong message to any parent or child in our district who is afraid, who wonders what the future holds, who questions their opportunities to succeed.”

Mathews didn’t talk about the message sent by breaking the law, lying to your employer and co-workers, and living illegally in another country.

Nasty Nicolle

While nearly all of the MSNBC “news” hosts are vehemently anti-Trump and anxious to say so, one of the worst is Nicolle Wallace. Every day she smears the president and often takes a few swings at the Trump family. In June, Wallace railed that, “if there’s rot in this White House, the malignancy is Jared and Ivanka…. The politics of this, in terms of revealing [Jared] as a know-nothing, nincompoop, I mean, it’s all been stripped away.”

Jared Kushner was a “weak human and an enabler” of Trump on birtherism, and full of “incompetence and hubris,” she fumed. He has “failed every time he went up to Capitol Hill to fix something for his father-in-law, the government shutdown, a spectacular calamity, politically and policy-wise.”

Wallace describes herself as a “non-practicing Republican.” She might consider redefining herself as a “non-practicing news host,” as well.

GET READY FOR 2020!

MRC Action is already preparing for the 2020 campaign season and all the liberal media tricks that will be coming with it.

We’re going all in to spread the “Don’t Believe the Liberal Media” message to hold the leftist media elites accountable all the way to the election. MRC Action is going to be everywhere: at the conventions, on billboards, and running fast-paced online campaigns.

If you haven’t yet, sign up for MRC Action alerts today to stay up-to-date! Email us at grassroots@mrc.org to sign up now!
Oberlin Punished for Fact-Free Food Fight

Oberlin College in Ohio has devolved into one of academe’s most infamous examples of political correctness, one of those unwelcoming places that rails against anyone who brings speakers to campus if those speakers upset Oberlin’s crusades against the racist/sexiest/anti-gay menace.

Now Oberlin’s administration is being punished in a very significant way for a very significant offense, and it’s about time. It has taken political correctness to an abusive extreme. The Wall Street Journal opinion sectionheadline summed it up: “Oberlin Pays for Smearing the Town Grocer.” It has been ordered to pay $44 million in damages to Gibson’s Food Market and Bakery. How so?

On Nov. 9, 2016, a black male Oberlin student attempted to buy wine at Gibson’s using a fake ID. Allyn Gibson, a grandson of the market owner, refused to sell alcohol to the underage student and then noticed he was hiding two bottles of wine under his shirt. Gibson called the police, and the student tried to run off, dropping the bottles on the floor. When Gibson pursued him, it turned violent. Police arrived to see Gibson on the ground being beaten by the black male and two black female Oberlin students.

In court, all three students pleaded guilty, and the male suspect swore in a plea statement that Gibson “was within his legal rights’ to detain him, and that he did not believe Gibson’s actions were racially motivated,” said the Journal.

Yet none of this stopped Oberlin’s students and administrators from mangling the truth. Because the assailants were black, students raucously protested, falsely claiming the store was racist. Worse yet, Meredith Raimondo, Oberlin’s dean of students, “handed out a flier accusing Gibson’s of having a ‘long account of racial profiling and discrimination,’” the Journal said.

The Gibson family sued Oberlin and Raimondo, seeking $12.8 million at trial on a number of counts including libel, intentional infliction of emotional distress and interference with business contracts. The college canceled the store’s longstanding food contracts. Boycotts and controversy took their toll. The store owners took no salary for two years, and nearly all the staff members were laid off. Gibson’s lawyers lamented that if they did not receive a ruling in their favor, they would be forced to close up shop. But the truth won.

Raimondo led a crusade inside the Oberlin administration. A text message was read during the trial in which she discussed whether to “unleash the students” on Gibson’s. This was war.

Cornell Law professor William Jacobson, who covered the case persistently on his blog, Legal Insurrection, told Fox News host Tucker Carlson that the Gibsons did nothing wrong. They were literally just minding their business that morning when they called the cops on a shoplifter. “Because of the crazed ... so-called social justice movement on our campuses, they were immediately designated oppressor, in part because of their skin color, in part because they’re the owner of a business,” Jacobson said. “And they were put into a pigeon hole of someone who ... must have engaged in racial profiling.”

A massive verdict against a prestigious private college must have been national news, right? It wasn’t. The same networks that savored every morsel of the scandal of Hollywood actresses partaking in college admissions scams offered nothing on Oberlin’s defeat. Only Fox News found the facts of this disturbing court case worth discussing.

This is why the other networks hate Fox News with a passion. They can’t bury these stories so a national audience never hears them. They prefer the narrative that political correctness never, ever goes wrong.
When the Continental Congress voted for independence from Britain, John Adams predicted the day “will be celebrated...[with] Pomp and Parade, Games, Sports, Guns, Bells, Bonfires, and Illuminations.”

He was only partially correct. The vote took place on July 2, 1776. As you know, the Declaration of Independence was adopted on the Fourth of July, which is the day we all celebrate.

But John Adams stubbornly insisted the commemoration ought to be held on July 2. It’s said he even refused to participate in celebrations held on the “wrong” date.

No Fireworks on Independence Day?

Regardless, there’s no wrong day to celebrate the wonderful legacy of freedom left to us by the Founding Fathers. It’s a legacy the MRC works to preserve and sustain through our mission: to create a media culture in America where truth and liberty flourish.

There’s also no day like today to start thinking about your legacy. A legacy gift to the MRC ensures that the lies of the Left will not go unchallenged, and that future generations will hear the truth.

If you’d like to hear how gift planning can meet your charitable, financial and legacy goals, contact Robert Croft, Vice President of Development, at 571-267-3500 or email him at rcroft@mrc.org. He will answer your questions about gift planning options, in confidence and with no obligation.

MINIBITS

- MSNBC’s Donny Deutsch hammers gay Democratic presidential contender Pete Buttigieg, “You bring out hope in the better angels in all of us... Are you too nice?”
- MSNBC’s Joe Scarborough whines, “[William] Barr is not an attorney general of the United States, he is Donald Trump’s defense attorney. He’s his lackey. He’s his stooge.”
- PBS’s Yamiche Alcindor warns about Trump, “I’ve talked to people that are from Venezuela, from Haiti, they say, ‘look at this very carefully, this is how authoritarian governments start... America really needs to watch out.’”
- MSNBC’s Chris Hayes lectures, “If you refer to immigrants as an infestation as the president has ... you will promote the conditions for cruelty as surely as effect follows cause. There is a body count to the president’s rhetoric now, and unless something changes, it is going to grow.”
- NPR’s Mark Memmott explains life, “Babies are not babies until they are born. They’re fetuses.”
- MSNBC’s Joy Reid fumes, “the Christian far-right [is] so confident, they’re pushing through laws in multiple states under Republican control that essentially send women back to the Dark Ages.”
- CNN’s Jeffrey Toobin smears the cable news leader, “Fox can use these [Democratic candidate] debates as a vehicle to go to advertisers and say, ‘Look, we are not just the racists and bigots in primetime — we are a real news organization.’” (By the way, CNN’s ratings now stand at 761,000, which is two-tenths of one percent of the U.S. population. Fact: There are more prostitutes in the U.S. than CNN viewers.)
- ABC The View’s Joy Behar rants, “This is an unbelievably corrupt president, corrupt administration, and the Republican Party is right behind him and they all should be thrown into jail as far as I’m concerned. Lock ‘em up!”
- MSNBC’s Donny Deutsch dispassionately diagnoses Trump, “I believe this man is capable of horrific, horrific deeds.... This is not a man who is playing with any boundaries on what a normal civilization and normal democracy has. I use the word sociopath.”
JOIN US!

Join Brent Bozell, founder and president of the Media Research Center, and an all-star line-up of conservative icons for eleven days and nights in Italy, Albania, and several Greek islands. You’ll enjoy all the amenities of Holland America’s brand new ship, the ms Koningsdam, and get the opportunity to meet and talk to some of the brightest stars of the conservative movement, all while enjoying the splendor and history of these gems of the Mediterranean!

• CIVITAVECCHIA (Rome), ITALY
• KATAKOLON (Olympia), GREECE
• PIRAEUS (Athens), GREECE
• MYKONOS, GREECE
• KUSADASI (Ephesus), TURKEY
• RHODES, GREECE
• THIRA (Santorini), GREECE
• SALERNO, ITALY
• CIVITAVECCHIA (Rome), ITALY

BRENT BOZELL  JAMES BUCKLEY  ALLEN WEST
JASON CHAFFETZ  JOE PISCOPO  CAL THOMAS

MRCCruise.com  |  1-844-889-1590