Let’s look at some of the ways the networks covered and perpetuated this fallacious news story.

The National Enquirer is probably the trashiest of trash tabloids. It is run by Trump-buddy David Pecker. It published the hit piece on March 23. Two days later, the ABC and NBC evening news shows reported what the super-

The left-wing media will do whatever it takes, stoop to any low to trash and malign conservatives and rig the 2016 elections, all in order to advance the liberal agenda.

In one of the latest outrageous examples of this devious behavior, ABC, CBS, and NBC repeatedly reported on a completely unsourced, unsubstantiated, and flat-out false hit-job article about Senator Ted Cruz (R-Texas) published in the National Enquirer tabloid.

The bogus story salaciously claimed that Senator Cruz, who is happily married and has two young daughters, had engaged in at least five affairs. The quasi-pornographic smear even showed five mugshots of the alleged mistresses with their faces blurred.

No one was quoted on-the-record in the so-called story except for Roger Stone, a close associate of Donald Trump and a political hit man. He had no evidence for the allegations and only claimed he was not the source of the smear.

The networks’ coverage of this tabloid trash was unwarranted and unprofessional. There were no facts, only fiction. Nonetheless, the left-wing nets made this fantasy national news.

The MRC documented and exposed the slimy actions of ABC, CBS, and NBC, through its various divisions: News Analysis, NewsBusters, MRC Culture, MRCTV, CNSNews.com, through radio and TV interviews of its expert staff, and in the nationally syndicated column written by me and my colleague Tim Graham.

market tabloid claimed. Although both networks noted that the story was not sourced, they re-reported it!

They sneered at the smear as they spread it. ABC’s World News Tonight ran a caption, “The New Low: Tabloid Report on Infidelity Rumors.” They then quoted Trump declaring that the National Enquirer was “right about O.J. Simpson, John Edwards, and many others. I certainly hope they are not right about Lyin’ Ted Cruz.”

ABC’s Jonathan Karl went on to tell a national audience, “The Enquirer cited rumors that Cruz had engaged in multiple marital infidelities. It quoted former Trump advisor Roger Stone, saying the story could hurt Cruz with evangelical voters, but Stone told ABC News he was not the source of the story. Cruz isn’t buying it.”

Karl then ran a clip of Cruz stating, “Let me be clear, this National Enquirer story is garbage. It is a smear that has come from Donald Trump and his henchmen.”

NBC’s Hallie Jackson related, “the tabloid provided no evidence to back up its claims,” and noted that hatchet-man Roger Stone told NBC he was “not the source of the story.”

No proof, no evidence, but they ran it anyway. They re-reported “rumors.”

The next day, a Saturday, all three morning news shows on ABC, CBS, and NBC talked about the National Enquirer allegations. CBS covered the smear as a “he said, he said” issue between Cruz and Trump.

ABC presented a full report, with scribbler Devin Dwyer lecturing, “On one of the most solemn days of the year for Christians, Good Friday, the Republican frontrunners descended into a battle over sleaze.”

Dwyer didn’t note that the battle was, unquestionably, fueled by national news coverage, especially from ABC.

NBC’s Hallie Jackson kept the fire lit by reporting that “a furious Ted Cruz is firing back at the National Enquirer, denying its story claiming he had extramarital affairs.”

Even the Spanish networks Univision and Telemundo piled on.

Univision turned to Roger Stone, no surprise, quoting him as saying, “These stories have been swirling about Cruz for some time. I believe where there is smoke there is fire. I have to believe this will hurt him with his evangelical Christian supporters.” Telemundo re-reported the hit-job in a nearly three-minute story.

On Monday, March 28, the morning shows on ABC, CBS, and NBC re-reported the National Enquirer fantasy again. ABC Good Morning America’s Robin Roberts, for instance, warned, “The war over wives, hitting a breaking point.” Guest co-host David Muir asked analyst Matt Dowd, “Any question in your mind that this is the new low point in this race?”

Don’t shoot the messenger. But when the messenger is peddling lies, blast it. Such arrogance. The media elite act like they are blameless. But they are shameless.

Twelve days after the Enquirer ran its garbage about Cruz, ABC was still hitting the fabricated story! On April 4, the day before Wisconsin voters went to the primary polls, ABC’s World News Tonight ran a lengthy piece rehashing the smear against Cruz. ABC’s David Muir talked about Cruz’s denials of adultery, and correspondent Tom Llamas drew parallels between Trump and Cruz: “But as Trump trips [on abortion questions], Senator Ted Cruz also facing some tough questions tonight, asked about a National Enquirer report citing rumors of marital infidelity.”

The story was garbage. There was not one fact — not one — to give any credibility to the charge. Rumors, sleaze, trash, lies. The networks reported and re-reported them because their goal is to destroy conservative leaders and conservative ideas, and promote liberalism, even if it means using fake stories. Any claim about fair or factual(!) journalism by ABC, CBS, or NBC is pretense. They are stenographers for Big Government, and they are undeniably trying to rig the 2016 elections.

Founder and President

The same National Enquirer that ran the sleazy hit piece on Ted Cruz endorsed Donald Trump for president. The trashy tabloid’s CEO, David Pecker, is a long-time friend of Trump.
The left-wing media that have run apologetic, misleading, propagandistic, and blame-America-first coverage of Communist Cuba for the last 55 years, journalistically swooned over President Barack Obama’s three-day trip to that island-prison in March.

Reporters downplayed or censored the ongoing human rights abuses on the island, and they never mentioned the 73,000 Cubans killed by the brutal Castro machine since 1960. They lauded Obama as a political messiah breathing life into a regime comatose by decades of totalitarianism.

And then these “journalists” claim they’re objective reporters.

As the MRC documented and exposed, for instance, ABC’s Good Morning America relentlessly cheered Obama’s first day in Cuba as “history-making,” a “day of history,” a “historical visit,” Obama “making history,” “history made here,” and “a historic moment.”

There were nine “history” references on GMA spread over three separate segments that lasted nearly seven minutes. During that laudatory coverage, GMA gave barely 10 seconds of coverage to 50 dissidents, mostly women, who had been arrested and hauled away in a prison bus a few hours before Obama arrived.

After one of Obama’s speeches in Havana, The New York Times claimed there were “comparisons to Ronald Reagan’s 1987 speech” in West Berlin where he challenged Mikhail Gorbachev to “tear down this wall.”

Barack Obama is happy for Cuba’s walls to remain, and for its people to remain on this island prison.

MSNBC’s Rachel Maddow unsurprisingly could not stop praising Obama. “President Bill Clinton tried to open up relations with Cuba and failed,” she said. “President Carter tried to open up relations with Cuba and failed. Nobody knows who will get to write the history of this moment in Cuban history. But in American history, we know, in American history.”

Drumroll, please. Cue Maddow: “In American history, we know that President Barack Obama will be forever the American leader who got done what every other Democrat since Jack Kennedy tried and failed to do. He got it done.”

On Obama’s last day in Cuba, May 22, radical Islamic terrorists attacked in Brussels, Belgium, killing 32 people and wounding 300. Despite this horrific atrocity the NYT’s Mark Landler whined that the violence “overshadowed” Obama’s “historic” trip.

Poor Obama. “The issues he had hoped to highlight — in this case his diplomatic opening to Cuba — were eclipsed by round-the-clock coverage of violent images from somewhere else,” lamented Landler.

When Obama stood with other officials for an official photo in Cuba’s Revolutionary Square, with a massive Che Guevara mural looming behind him, ABC and NBC did not broadcast the image.

And for good reason. Guevara was Fidel Castro’s chief executioner, responsible for thousands of deaths. Guevara also hated homosexuals and described blacks as “indolent” people who waste their money on “frivolity or drink.”

The leftist media don’t want to talk about that.
CNN Fareed Zakaria’s ongoing worship of President Barack Obama was on display during his April 10 GPS show, where he hailed Obama for transforming the Middle East and destroying his political enemies. “The biggest impact of his presidency, however, can be seen in his opposition — the Republican Party — which is in the midst of an ideological breakdown,” thumped Zakaria. Quoting a columnist, Zakaria declared that Obama “is now close to destroying his political enemies — the Republican Party, the American conservative movement, and the public policy legacy of Ronald Reagan.”

“Obama never lashed out, demonstrating discipline even as his opposition grew wilder,” Zakaria droned on. “As Obama kept his cool, the Republican Party descended deeper into the politics of identity, flirting with racial, religious and ethnic grievances, and moving away from its core tenets of limited government, free markets, and free trade. The result has been an ideological implosion.”

Former ABC News anchor Carole Simpson went on CNN’s Smerconish show and relentlessly whined about young women who don’t want to vote for Hillary Clinton. “I don’t know what’s going on with women,” bemoaned Simpson. “I have — people my age, contemporaries of Hillary Clinton — want her to be president and are going to vote for her. The young women I teach at college... my young 20-year-olds don’t understand why they should vote for Hillary Clinton.”

Simpson fretted, “They’re Bernie Sanders supporters. But they’re this millennial generation that feels entitled and, you know, everything will work out, everything’s open to them, what they say matters, and then they’re not going to show up at the polls because they are the worst demographic group in terms of voting participation.... I don’t know what’s happening, and I don’t know why women don’t think Hillary Clinton ought to be the first female president.”

The liberal media repeatedly praised leftist rocker Bruce Springsteen for canceling a concert in North Carolina to protest the state’s new law against biological males using women’s locker rooms and bathrooms, ABC and CBS were giddy with praise. On Good Morning America, ABC’s Steve Osunsami cheered, “This morning, ‘The Boss’ is changing everything. Bruce Springsteen, the rock legend who honors veterans and stands up for heroes, is refunding concert tickets today in protest of the North Carolina law that rolls back protections for gay families and stops transgender residents from using the bathrooms they need.”

CBS This Morning’s Norah O’Donnell lauded Springsteen and quoted him as saying that “this fight against prejudice and bigotry” is “more important than a rock show.” CBS’s David Begnaud declared that “The Boss” is “never shy about taking a social or political stand,” and let band member Steven Van Zandt describe North Carolina’s pro-privacy law as “spreading like an evil virus around the country.”
Liberal Media: F U Cruz!

When the New York Daily News ran the anti-Cruz front-page headline, “Take the F U Train, Ted!” CNN’s Alisyn Camerota was so happy she repeatedly plugged it on New Day. “Look at how helpful the Daily News is being, though, for Ted Cruz,” she cracked. “They’re giving him helpful subway directions about how to get out of the Bronx. They’re suggesting that he ‘take the F.U. train.’”

Thirty minutes later with CNN’s Bill Carter, Camerota cooed, “Just look at this morning’s New York Daily News cover taking aim at Senator Ted Cruz. ‘Take the F.U. train, Ted,’ it says. Bill Carter likes that.”

In the second hour, Camerota hit it again, if “the Daily News cover is any indication,” New York is telling Cruz “where he can go.... Should Ted Cruz give up on New York and just focus on other future states?”

Maybe Camerota should just focus on cheerleading for the Democrats.

Bill Maher Unplugged

Expressing his hatred for conservatives, HBO’s Bill Maher smeared Ted Cruz as a pedophile and House Republicans as “teabaggers” on his April 8 show. “Ted Cruz seems to be gaining favor — when I say ‘gaining favor’ among the other Republicans, they’re thinking, ‘Hey, you know what, we don’t like him, but sometimes you have to use a rat to kill a snake.’” Americans, said Maher, can choose “Ted Cruz — a man with all the appeal of Jared from Subway — or Donald Trump, the zombie candidate.”

As for Congress, they’re “obstructionist aholes,” he fumed. “Our current teabagger Congress proves that you can’t govern anymore.” Regarding Trump, Maher mocked, “Do you really want to spend four years defending every single thing that President Trump tweets in the middle of the night? Defending every stupid thing that he does — when he invades Poland or puts Hulk Hogan on the nickel or retweets our nuclear codes?”

Minibits

- Describing President Barack Obama standing in front of a mural of Communist executioner Che Guevera, former CNN host Piers Morgan declares, “Freedom fighters!”
- NYT’s Nicholas Kristof frets, “The upshot is that Brussels survived this week’s terrorist attacks, but it may not survive climate change.”
- Fake-conservative David Brooks lets what’s left of his hair down, “I’ve spent the last weeks so repulsed by Donald Trump I had forgotten how ugly Ted Cruz could be. But he reminded us this week.”
- Columnist Charles Pierce bellows, “Anyone who watched the conservative movement, the only animating force the Republican Party has, drive the party further and deeper into madness,” and did nothing, is responsible for Trump.
- “The media bears a great responsibility for the rise of He, Trump.” Daily Beast writer Jonathan Alter forecasts, “So it’s either going to be Trump or Cruz, which means that this is now the ‘Banana Republican Party.’ Both of these men are manifestly unfit for high office.”
- NYT’s Jill Abramson, in all seriousness, declares, “Hillary Clinton is fundamentally honest and trustworthy.”
- MSNBC’s Chris Matthews, a Catholic, lectures, “I think it’s a woman’s choice...I believe we live in a free country, and I don’t want to live in a country so fascist that it can stop a person from making that decision.”
- Hollywood’s Barbra Streisand chimes in, “It is time we grew up as a nation. We should stop being afraid of women. Hillary Clinton isn’t afraid. It’s about time that a woman with strength, experience and compassion leads our already great nation in this time of global insecurity.”
- Sexual sewer-mouth Dan Savage warns, “People will die as a direct result of Trump getting the GOP nomination. This is a terrifying moment.”
Less than a year ago, ABC’s George Stephanopoulos admitted to Politico that he had made $75,000 in undisclosed contributions to the charitable foundation-slash-campaign operation of his former employers Bill and Hillary Clinton. He personally pledged he wouldn’t moderate a Republican primary debate this year. But ABC News issued a statement of support for Stephanopoulos and insisted it “would take no punitive action against him.”

It’s bad enough that ABC never even considered removing this self-evident Clinton loyalist from its “objective” political coverage. They even allow him to conduct softball interviews with Hillary Clinton, and won’t even insist on reminding viewers of his substantial financial support of the woman he’s interviewing.

ABC’s Amy Robach sounded ridiculous on the April 4 Good Morning America when promising “Our candid interview with the Democratic front-runner, right here on GMA.” Candor has left the building when this man is allowed to interview this woman.

Viewers could catch on that George and Hillary are big pals as she reminisced about the “good old days” of partisan warfare for Bill Clinton. Stephanopoulos stuck to horse-race questions, like asking Hillary if she had to win her “home state” of New York. She replied “I have been through this before. You and I were laughing before we started, I can remember how hard it was when my husband ran in ’92” (against Jerry Brown).

Stephanopoulos only asked Hillary vague questions about Sanders: “Why can’t you put him away?” And on Trump: “Are you worried at all this goes to a contested convention on the Republican side and they pick somebody else, a fresh face, who might be a more difficult challenge in the general election?”

There was absolutely nothing about the ongoing FBI investigation into her scandalous use of a private e-mail server at the State Department. On NBC’s Meet the Press one day before, Chuck Todd quoted the Milwaukee Journal-Sentinel pounding her for a “horrible track record on transparency.” There was absolutely nothing about any actual issue of substance, like abortion. One day before, Todd caused Hillary some political heartburn on her right and her left by asking “When, or if, does an unborn child have constitutional rights?”

Mrs. Clinton “messed up” by repeating the “unborn” language to Todd: “Well, under our laws currently, that is not something that exists. The unborn person doesn’t have constitutional rights.” A Planned Parenthood official in Illinois complained on Twitter that the U-word is terrible because it “further stigmatizes abortion.”

She upset the right by comparing any restrictions on abortion to communist oppression: “I have seen what happens when governments make these decisions, whether it was forced sterilization, forced abortion in China, or forced childbearing in communist Romania.”

Stephanopoulos found no reason to ask follow-up questions on the kerfuffle. But while Todd was pressing Mrs. Clinton on Sunday, George pounded no-chance Republican candidate John Kasich on This Week with eight abortion questions, such as: “If you believe that abortion is the taking of innocent life, why shouldn’t a woman who makes the choice to take that life face some kind of punishment or sanctions?”

This unpaid Hillary shill even asked Bernie Sanders three questions about abortion on his Sunday show, starting with this: “You know, Secretary Clinton also said this morning that she doesn’t believe that there are any constitutional rights for the unborn. Is that your position as well?” The goal was that Bernie might get a share of Hillary’s heartburn in his answers.

Certainly, a former Clinton spokesman could attempt objective journalism. Stephanopoulos never does. This was merely the latest proof that Disney-owned ABC runs a Mickey Mouse “news” operation.
