Liberal Media Downplay, Spin, and Censor Email Scandal to Protect Hillary Clinton

The national security nightmare (and potential crimes) caused by Hillary Clinton's use of a separate email account and unsecured server as Secretary of State are being investigated by the FBI, the State Department, Congress, and the Intelligence Community Inspector General.

In addition, a federal judge has ordered that thousands of emails Clinton kept on her server in her New York home be released to the public in response to Freedom of Information lawsuits. Other emails – not released – which were on Clinton's unencrypted server, are now known to have been classified "Top Secret."

The issue is extremely serious, for national security reasons, and potentially could destroy Hillary Clinton's chance of running for president in 2016. The liberal media know this, which is why they are spinning, downplaying, or censoring news about the investigation – all to protect Clinton.

The MRC has documented and exposed this liberal media agenda through NewsBusters, MRCTV, the News Analysis Division, a nationally syndicated column by yours truly with Tim Graham, and through interviews of our expert staff on talk radio and television.

In response to a reporter's question about whether she "wiped" her computer server before turning it over to the FBI, Hillary Clinton jokes, "What? Like with a cloth or something?" The liberal media laughed over that answer in their coverage – all to protect her.

Let's look at some examples of how the leftist media are spinning for Hillary.

The FBI took possession of Clinton's server in mid-August of this year, but then her lawyer revealed that all emails had been erased from the server before it was turned over to the bureau. Clinton also changed her story in August. She had said she had never received or sent classified data through her private email. Now she claimed she had never done so with correspondence actually "marked" classified. Also, it was disclosed that the Blackberries used by Clinton's top aides Cheryl Mills and Huma Abedin were likely destroyed.

It's the IRS scandal all over again. And just as with the IRS scandal, the leftist media are rushing to cover it up.

As this was happening, New York Times reporter Josh Barro went on

Despite the disturbing development in early September when the State Department released 7,000 pages of Clinton emails and declared 150 of those emails as “classified,” NBC’s Chuck Todd reported there was no smoking gun and that it looked like Clinton was “out of legal jeopardy.” CBS This Morning made the same claim.

MSNBC and declared that after so many Clinton scandals over the years, “at this point it’s all just background noise.” He added, “the media trumps all of this up because it is good television.”

The NYT’s Paul Krugman wrote in his weekly column, “No, the email thing doesn’t rise to the level of a scandal.”

On Aug. 20, when it was learned that Clinton’s server had been erased and that a federal judge ordered the State Department to release emails subject to a lawsuit, ABC, CBS, and NBC, as well as Telemundo, largely ignored the shocking developments. The NBC Nightly News, for instance, gave the story nine seconds.

The morning network shows were not much different. ABC’s Good Morning America for six days devoted less than 4 minutes of coverage to the email scandal, and that’s out of 11 hours of total airtime. For contrast, GMA devoted 15 minutes to the rock band “5 Seconds of Summer,” which I bet you’ve never heard of.

That same week, on Aug. 19, Clinton held a press conference and when asked if her computer server had been “wiped” – scrambled electronically so no information could ever be recovered – Clinton jokingly answered, “What? Like with a cloth or something?”

CNN’s Carol Costello thought that was hilarious, reporting that “you had to laugh when Hillary Clinton said that. Clearly she must know what wiping a server means?” Her tech guest, Christina Warren, said, “Absolutely, of course she knows. But it was a fun way to try to, maybe, obstruct the question.”

Obstruction of justice is funny if it’s a Clinton doing it.

Several days later, NBC’s Chuck Todd hosted leftist Howard Dean on Meet the Press, who predictably lectured, “Look, this is, in fact, manufactured partly by a press that’s bored and partly by the Republicans. Here’s the deal. She did not break any rules, she did not break any policy, she may have sent stuff that was classified that wasn’t labeled classified .... She can’t be blamed for this.”

On MSNBC’s Andrea Mitchell Reports, fill-in host Luke Russert trotted out Democratic operative James Carville to run interference. “It’s not going to amount to a hill of beans,” barked Carville. “It’s just mostly, you know, stupid media people talking to other stupid media people, making stuff up and spinning themselves up on something.”

On Sept. 3, the former campaign staffer who installed and maintained the server in Clinton’s house, Bryan Pagliano, pleaded the 5th Amendment against self-incrimination before a House committee. CBS completely ignored that news, as did Univision and Telemundo. ABC and NBC gave it short shrift, with the latter hauling out Clintonite John Podesta, who described the email scandal as “headwinds.”

That same week, the State Department released 7,000 pages of Clinton emails. State declared that 150 of those emails were deemed “classified.” Despite that disturbing development, CNN’s John Berman chirped, “as far as I can tell, nothing in here that reeks of illegality.” NBC’s Chuck Todd reported there was no smoking gun and that it looked like Clinton was “out of legal jeopardy.” CBS This Morning made the same claim.

On Morning Joe, panelist Harold Ford Jr. informed us, “I don’t think that she violated any laws of the country. And I certainly don’t believe in her heart that’s what she intended to do.” Apparently, MSNBC now has a heart-whisperer.

Liberal media bias knows no bounds when it comes to protecting and promoting Hillary Clinton. They’ve been running interference for her and Bill Clinton for decades.

The MRC doggedly documents and exposes that bias every day. No other organization does this. As the liberal press continues to spin for Hillary going into 2016, the MRC will hold them accountable. You can help us in this mission by making a donation to the MRC today. Give us a call (571-267-3500). We look forward to hearing from you.

Demanding ABC, CBS, and NBC Report the Truth About Planned Parenthood

To help force the liberal media to report the truth about the horrific actions of Planned Parenthood – exposed in 10 undercover investigative videos so far that show the harvesting of aborted baby parts – the MRC has established an exclusive MRC Action Web page.

The page is designed to allow people to watch those videos; read articles about Planned Parenthood’s atrocities; learn about its racist founder Margaret Sanger; and sign a petition demanding that the media tell the truth about the $1 billion abortion giant, which receives more than $500 million in taxpayer funding every year.

98,124 people signed the petition and it was delivered to executives at ABC, CBS, and NBC on September 3. As more people sign, those newer signatures on the petition will also be sent to the networks.

The liberal media have censored for nearly two months now the 10 undercover videos. ABC, CBS, and NBC also completely ignored – zero coverage – a Sept. 9 House Judiciary Committee hearing on the videos and federal funding of Planned Parenthood.

This censorship by the leftist media to protect the largest abortion business in the country is “outrageous and inexcusable,” said MRC President Brent Bozell.

ABC News was particularly egregious, he said, because it “has not even aired one second of video footage (with audio) of the investigative videos” produced by the Center for Medical Progress.

In addition to the petition, the MRC and more than two dozen pro-life leaders sent a letter to the news chiefs at ABC, CBS, and NBC protesting the non-coverage and demanding that they report the truth on this scandalous abortion enterprise that is funded each year with more than $500 million in taxpayer dollars.

“Your network’s censorship of this taxpayer-funded house of horrors is eerily reminiscent of its censorship of abortionist Kermit Gosnell’s murder trial,” reads part of the letter. “Both cases involve revolting acts of violence and ABC’s deliberate censorship of them.”

The letter notes some of the barbaric activities documented on the videos, including the “crushing” of aborted babies in ways to ensure heart, liver, and lung are not damaged; how to abort “intact fetal cadavers”; taking fetal parts without patient consent; cutting open a baby with a beating heart; joking about shipping intact baby heads; and Planned Parenthood staffers laughing over aborted babies “all mixed up together in a bag.”

In addition to Bozell, the letter was signed by pro-life leaders such as Marjorie Dannenfelser, Bishop E.W. Jackson, Andrea Lafferty, Lila Rose, Richard Viguerie, Tony Perkins, and the Hon. Ken Cuccinelli.

The screenshot shows the MRC Action Web page. At the top, it says "media research center" and "SHARE NOW!" with social media icons. Below is a large image of a pregnant woman's belly with a fetus inside. Text reads: "DEMAND THE MEDIA TELL THE TRUTH ABOUT PLANNED PARENTHOOD!" and "PLEASE SIGN OUR PETITION". A video player shows a woman speaking, with a caption: "LATEST NEWS ON PLANNED PARENTHOOD SCANDAL". Below the video player is a photo of several stacked cardboard boxes. Text next to the boxes says: "MRC staff delivered boxes of nearly 93,000 names to the offices of top executives at ABC, CBS, and NBC."

All the proof you need. In addition to the petition, the MRC Action website features our latest research on liberal media bias on the Planned Parenthood scandal, the history of Planned Parenthood and all of the damning Center for Medical Progress undercover videos.

MRC staff delivered boxes of nearly 93,000 names to the offices of top executives at ABC, CBS, and NBC.

Trump, Alabama and the ghost of George Wallace

The South rises for Trump, but only 20,000 of them.

By BEN SCHRECKINGER | 09/21/15, 11:36 PM EDT | Updated 09/23/15, 02:52 PM EDT

Politico, not happy with Donald Trump's views on illegal immigration, smears him as a modern-day George Wallace, and claims at a huge Trump rally in Alabama "the ghost of George Wallace loomed large."

Trump = Wallace?

Donald Trump's strong position on illegal immigration makes him the equivalent of racial segregationist George Wallace, according to Politico's Ben Schreckinger. In an article headlined "Donald Trump, Alabama and the Ghost of George Wallace," Politico thumps that "it was immigration, not segregation, that brought some 20,000 southerners" to a Trump rally in Mobile, Ala., "but the ghost of George Wallace loomed large."

Schreckinger hammered on, "Wallace, an avowed segregationist, was the last presidential candidate to win electoral votes as a third-party candidate. The threat of Trump doing so, propelled by a hardline immigration stance that many have condemned as racist, looms over the Republican Party now as it did over the Democratic Party then." To somehow prove his smear of Trump as a racist, Schreckinger added that at the rally "the vast majority of supporters were white." Politico quickly glossed over Sen. Jeff Sessions' introduction of Trump at the rally, and that Sessions had helped craft Trump's immigration plan.

Ken Burns, Liberal Jerk

Documentary film-maker Ken Burns, now starring in pledge drives for PBS, spewed his left-wing opinion that "birtherism" is just like the N-word. On Face the Nation to discuss PBS re-running, again, his Civil War documentary, Burns whined, "We pretend with the election of Barack Obama, that we're in some kind of post-racial society, and of course, you know, we're not! The Onion magazine got it right when he was inaugurated. It said, 'Black man given worst job in world.'"

Burns droned on, "And what we've seen is a kind of reaction to this – the birther movement, to which Donald Trump is one of the authors of, is another politer way of saying the N-word. It's just more sophisticated, and a little bit more clever. He's other. He's different. What's actually other and different about him? It turns out it's the same old thing, it's the color of his skin." Or maybe it's his socialism?

Left-wing documentarian and PBS fundraiser Ken Burns lectures that the "birther movement" is racist, that it's just a "politer way of saying the N-word" to attack President Obama who is the "other" and "different."

Gender-Fluid TARGET

After retail chain Target decided to "phase out gender-based signage" by not advertising differences between boys' and girls' items in its stores, the leftist media couldn't praise the company enough. The Washington Post cheered how the change showed "women and girls confronting female stereotypes," and also somehow raised "awareness of the transgender community."

USA Today claimed a problem was solved: "Kids visiting Target will no longer have to consider their gender while shopping." The popular Bustle website lectured, "Removing stigmas from children's toys and products is a multistep process. The first and crucial step, as Target has realized, is removing unnecessary classifications. But the next is providing an equality in toys." MTV applauded the "corporate charge on smashing gender norms," stressing that Target's change "is a win for you" and "a win for everyone."

Remember this next time you're thinking about shopping at Target.

Kim Davis is Like ISIS

CBS This Morning cued up author Salman Rushdie, who was once under a death-sentence fatwa from Islamists, to comment on Kentucky clerk Kim Davis, who was jailed for refusing to certify gay “marriage” licenses. On the Sept. 4 broadcast, CBS’s Gayle King asked Rushdie, “What do you think about what’s going on in Kentucky with Kim Davis, who’s standing up for her religious beliefs, when you were really the victim of religious beliefs, where they were trying to get you?”

Rushdie, a flaming left-winger, snapped, “[E]nough with Kim Davis. I think, you know, really, she should go away if possible. If she wants to stay in jail, fine ... Back in the ‘90s when there was an attack on me, there were a few people in Britain” who “felt that the law of God was superior to the law of the land and so they would follow the religious principles. I mean, they were Muslims, but it’s the same thing.” Kim Davis = Islamic radicals. Got it?

On CBS, leftist author Salman Rushdie equates evangelical Christian Kim Davis and her refusal to issue gay “marriage” licenses with radical Islamists who murder people for religious reasons.

Fetal Panda Tissue?

It’s no surprise, but the pro-abortion networks ABC, CBS, and NBC gave far more coverage to the birth of panda bear twins at the National Zoo than they did to the undercover videos – 10 so far – of Planned Parenthood’s harvesting of aborted baby parts. Between Aug. 12 and Sept. 2, the networks gave the panda pregnancy and then the births 29 minutes of coverage. But between July 14 and Sept. 2, the same nets gave the Planned Parenthood videos less than 24 minutes of coverage.

Reporters at ABC, NBC, and CBS all referred to the pandas as “babies,” but labeled the aborted humans as “fetal tissue.”

At the same time, reporters at ABC, NBC, and CBS all referred to the pandas as “babies,” but labeled the aborted humans as “fetal tissue.” For the panda births, ABC’s Reena Ninan gushed over the “very special arrivals,” the “babies who weighed less than five ounces each.” Her colleague Robin Roberts chimed in about how the bears “start off so tiny, tiny tiny” like the size of a “stick of butter.”

Minibits

■ CNN’s Wolf Blitzer lobbies for abortion-giant Planned Parenthood by quizzing Sen. Rand Paul (R-Ky.), “Why do you want to defund Planned Parenthood? Why not try to fix the organization and allow these women to get the services they have relied on?” ■ CNN’s Chris Cuomo does the same, telling Rep. Diane Black (R-Tenn.), “Those videos have been maligned by both sides as being selectively edited .... You shouldn’t rush to defund, should you?” ■ ABC’s Cokie Roberts applauds Hillary Clinton’s climate change schtick, “When she [Hillary] says, ‘Everybody says I’m not a scientist,’ she says, ‘I’m not a scientist either, I’m just a grandmother with two eyes and a brain.’ That’s brilliant.” ■ Boston Globe’s Annie Linskey can’t curb her enthusiasm for socialist Bernie Sanders: “It’s just so wonderful and refreshing to have somebody saying some of these things.” ■ ABC’s Mary Bruce stumps for Joe Biden, “He’s had his fair share of stumbles – from back rubs to BFDs, Biden is a gaffe-making machine. But those, ‘Oh, that Joe’ moments are part of his political charm.” ■ AP’s Julie Pace whines about the GOP presidential contenders, “There’s not much diversity in terms of gender and race. What does that say to the American public about diversity in the Republican Party?” ■ Univision’s “news anchor” Jorge Ramos reveals his fair and balanced side, “I think Donald Trump is the loudest voice of intolerance, division and hatred right now in America.” ■ Citing Miley Cyrus as inspiration, the wife of ABC’s George Stephanopoulos, Ali Wentworth, exposed her breasts (with pasties) twice on ABC’s Jimmy Kimmel Live, and cracked, “I cannot wait until George Stephanopoulos sees this on Pop News.”

Reporter or P.R. agent? ABC’s Mary Bruce tries to remedy Vice President Biden’s reputation: “(F)rom back rubs to BFDs, Biden is a gaffe-making machine. But those, ‘Oh, that Joe’ moments are part of his political charm.”

When Child Sex Abuse Gets Ignored

The double standard our media impose on child sexual abuse is garishly obvious. On August 14, The Washington Post set the stage for the coming American visit of Pope Francis with another splashy front-page story on a man still berating the Catholic Church after being abused by a priest from 1969 to 1976.

But on August 21, after a court sentenced former Baltimore Ravens cheerleader Molly Shattuck, 48, for sexually abusing a 15-year old boy merely a year ago, the Post ignored it completely. Apparently there was no room. That boy's family had no media advocate there.

It's horrible that a priest would so egregiously betray his vows to abuse and manipulate a child. It's also horrible that a mother would betray her teenage son by sexually molesting one of his friends. But only one of these stories is apparently "newsworthy."

It's obvious that in our culture today, the idea of a 15-year-old boy "becoming a man" with a grown woman is seen as a happy occasion. The notion of childhood innocence is not just antiquated, it's downright silly. People imagine the high-school high-fives, and don't think of rape.

If Shattuck were a Ravens football player, not a cheerleader, it would be news.

On August 21, ABC's World News Tonight ran only 63 words on Shattuck's crime, including a note on the slap-on-the-wrist punishment: "The judge ordering her to spend every other weekend at a probation center for the next two years. The ex-wife of a billionaire CEO, she was selected as a cheerleader in the NFL at the age of 38."

The story lasted 19 seconds.

There was no story on CBS, or NBC, or PBS. We couldn't find any coverage on the cable news networks.

The New York Times and the Boston Globe, so heralded for how aggressively they dug and dug into sexual abuse among Catholic priests, were nowhere to be found.

When the allegations broke out last November, the networks barely noticed. ABC covered it after midnight on Nightline — using footage from when they had aired a segment promoting Mrs. Shattuck on 20/20 in 2006, when she made the Ravens cheerleading squad. NBC had one story on Today, and CBS just a mention on the early morning news.

The crime of a former NFL cheerleader doesn't interest journalists like NFL players do. At the start of last year's NFL season — from the start of the regular season on September 4 through October 15 — ABC, CBS, and NBC combined for 171 morning and evening news stories on five NFL players embroiled in domestic abuse cases.

What's a more important story, a controversy over deflated footballs or a scandal about an ex-cheerleader committing child sexual abuse? The Big Three networks have devoted a staggering 86-plus minutes this year to obsessing over every aspect of "Deflategate." Molly Shattuck's child sexual abuse drew 19 seconds.

Contemplate that.

The Holy Father lands in Washington on September 22. It's safe to guess we're going to hear more shocking stories about abusive priests in the Sixties and Seventies — yes, forty years, fifty years ago. But if the national media cannot broaden their scope to cover other — which is to say, non-Catholic clergy — cases of child sex abuse going on much more recently, how can they avoid the accusation of anti-Catholic prejudice?

NFL cheerleader Molly Shattuck, 48, sexually abused a 15-year-old boy, but CBS, NBC, PBS, the New York Times and Boston Globe didn't report it and ABC gave it 19 seconds of coverage. Imagine the coverage if she were a Catholic priest and had abused a boy.
